

KING GEORGE CROWNED TODAY

A GREAT WELCOME

Thousands Cheer the King and Queen of England

LONDON, June 22.—King George, eighth of the house of Hanover, was today consecrated to the service of the British empire and the world-wide subjects.

With his consort, Queen Mary, his entry was crowned in the abbey of Westminster with all the wealth of religious rites and royal ceremonial prescribed by historic custom.

The picture within the gray-walled choir was one of the medieval splendor. The coronation services, solemn and imposing, were being handed down from the earlier centuries and the actors in the principal secondary roles of today's great function were garbed in reproductions of the multi-colored, gold-embroidered trappings worn by their ancestors. The latter made up a wonderfully effective setting around the central figures.

Outside, the usually dull streets had been transformed into a mass of color. The king's and queen's progress to the abbey and the return to Buckingham palace was an unbroken ovation. The route was hedged with a vast polyglot host with a background of bravely decorated viewing stands and windows and roofs, all of which were crammed to their capacity.

Hundreds of thousands of spectators shouted themselves hoarse at central points like the Mall and the entrance to the Admiralty archway, where the government stands held a score of thousands. Trafalgar square was so densely packed with humanity that it would have been very easy to traverse the square walking on the heads of the people. Parliament square, Chislehurst and Constitution hill held their countless hordes.

The tumult of thunderous welcome was almost deafening as the king and queen passed on the outward and homeward journey, preceded in the first instance and followed on the return by a stately cavalcade of eminent princes, many themselves heirs to thrones, statesmen, diplomats, courtiers, soldiers, sailors and men of all hues, races and creeds from the four quarters of the globe.

The great ceremonial passed off unmarred by any untoward incident. When dawn broke the skies were heavy and showers fell during the progress of the procession of royal guests and the junior members of the royal family to the abbey, but as the king and queen left Buckingham palace to be crowned the heavens smiled and a flood of sunshine brightened the splendid pageant.

It was a proud day for the British empire, but of its millions the one who perhaps has the most reason to be proud was denied by court etiquette the joy of witnessing the triumphant event. At Sandringham palace Queen Mother Alexandra, who forty-six years ago this month gave Great Britain a king, awaited the news that her son had taken his place in the long line of British monarchs.

a 'suicide' and they can never enter heaven.

"Good-bye, from your unhappy daughter."

Written evidently at the last moment before the tragic act was the following line:

"I am in canal. Maude Eastman."

Father Notified

When Capt. Atkinson read the note he immediately detailed Lieut. Freeman to call on the girl's father in May street and shortly afterwards the father arrived at the police station and identified the coat, hat and handbag as that belonging to his daughter.

In the meantime Sergt. Giroux and Patrolmen Gennell were sent to the canal with grappling irons and at about 2 o'clock this morning they succeeded in recovering the body which was taken to Undertaker Saunders' funeral parlors.

Act Was Premeditated

The unfortunate girl had been keeping company with a young man, but owing to the difference of religion, it is said, the parents objected to her keeping company with him. Last night she ate supper with her father and mother and after supper said she was going to visit a friend in Hampshire street. That was the last time her parents saw her alive.

It is said that she visited the house in Hampshire street and explained to her girl friend that she had nothing to live for inasmuch as her folks objected to her marrying the man she loved. Her friend tried to console her and told her not to take matters so seriously.

She then left the house in Hampshire street and evidently walked through the streets pondering over her troubles and went to the canal walk, and after removing her hat and coat and laying her bag on the bank threw herself into the water.

She is survived by her father and another and one brother, Raymond.

SKETCH OF P. J. RILEY'S STOREHOUSE IN FLAMES

Storehouse in Tanner Street Was Destroyed by Fire

A fire which threatened the manufacturing district in Ayer city broke out in the storehouse of P. J. Riley in Tanner street shortly before six o'clock last night, and despite the efforts of the fire department the structure and its contents were destroyed.

All that remains of the structure at the present time is the wooden front in Tanner street, the side wall nearest to Howard street and the brick wall in the rear.

Owing to the combustible material in the building the blaze spread rapidly and when the firemen arrived on the scene the whole building was ablaze. Deputy Chief James E. Norton saw at a glance that it was almost impossible to save the building, but he detailed men to cover all sides of the structure in an attempt to stay the flames and also save the adjoining property.

Despite the hard work of the firemen, however, several buildings in the vicinity caught fire.

The fire was spectacular to say the least for when the department arrived on the scene, the flames, wafted by a strong wind, were reaching far into Tanner street. While the firemen were fighting the flames on two sides and the rear of the building the majority were in Tanner street, directing several streams into the burning building. The heat was so intense that the men had to retreat. Some of the men who stood to their posts until driven back by the heat are nursing scorched faces today.

The contents of the building consisted of paper stock and rags. Owing to the nature of the contents it was impossible to extinguish the fire in the smoldering rags and paper for several hours and the last detail of the fire department did not leave the premises until early this morning. The recall being sent in shortly before 4 o'clock.

Heard an Explosion

The engineer of the McNabb Bros. laundry in Tanner street was the first person to discover the blaze. He was looking the door to the boiler room when he heard a loud report as though an explosion had occurred, and looking he saw the Riley storehouse he saw flames shooting from the rear of the building. He rushed across the street to box 163 and pulled in an alarm, and in a few seconds hose No. 4 was on the scene and in rapid succession the other pieces of apparatus that respond to that box arrived.

When the firemen reached the building the flames were shooting out of the windows on all four sides and were beginning to make their way through the roof.

The water seemed to have little effect on the building owing to the headway that the fire had before the apparatus arrived on the scene.

Tower Pulled Down

Shortly after the blaze broke out the roof went in with a crash and one of the chimneys fell out. A high tower at one end of the building caught fire and the blaze endangered the adjoining property as well as the firemen who were working on the building.

Deputy Chief Norton ordered the firemen to pull the tower down, and after considerable work the high wooden structure was toppled over into the ruins.

That the fire did not destroy other buildings in the vicinity was due to the good work of the firemen. The two-story building at the corner of Tanner street and Tanner street, used as a storehouse by Dickson the tax man, caught fire from flying sparks and it was only after considerable trouble that the building was saved. An unoccupied two-story building in Tanner street, which at one time was used as an office by the late Richard Dobbins, also caught fire but was extinguished before much damage was done. The loss is estimated at $8000.

Hard Work for Firemen

After the building was destroyed the contents, which consisted of paper and rags, continued to smolder, and while some of the firemen were drenched the numbers of four hose companies and a truck were detailed to remain on the premises and pour water over the smoldering ruins and pour over the contents so that the blaze would not break out again. The men worked hard and at times when it was thought the flames had been extinguished a pile of rubbish would be turned over and smoldering embers would be found beneath. It was not until 3:51 o'clock this morning that the fire was finally extinguished and the recall sounded.

Fire Will Be Investigated

Both the building and contents are covered by insurance through the agency of Fred C. Church.

Deputy Chief Norton is unable to state the cause of the fire and owing to the mystery of its origin he has notified the office of the fire marshal in Boston to send a man to Lowell to look into the affair.

History of Building

The building was two stories high, a portion of the roof being flat while the rest was pitched and at one end was a tower which was 50 feet high. It was formerly used as a boiler works by Richard Dobbins, and the tower was what is known as a riveting tower. It was of wooden structure with the exception of the wall in the rear, which was of brick.

This building was badly damaged by fire on August 11, 1881, when it was used as a boiler works by Richard Dobbins.

Fire in Attic Room

An alarm from box 35 at 6:07 o'clock last night summoned a portion of the fire department to a blaze in a house at 214 Charles street owned by D. M. Kazanjian. The fire started in an attic room which was unoccupied. Fortunately the blaze was discovered in time to prevent its spreading to the roof. When the firemen arrived on the scene they succeeded in confining the fire to the room where it started. The blaze was soon extinguished and the damage was slight.

Fred C. Church held the insurance on the furniture in the house.

Matches Caused Fire

At 7:10 o'clock an alarm from box 42 was sounded for a fire in a three-story building at 78 South street, owned by a Mr. Dillie. The fire was caused by the careless use of matches. The fire started in a clothes closet and the only damage done was to the closet and some clothing which was hanging there and some bed clothing.

The blaze was soon extinguished but the firemen in throwing out the debris caused consternation among some of the occupants of the house, who claimed that there was a large sum of money and a gold watch in the clothing which was burned. A search resulted in the finding of the money and the watch which had been hidden in the closet.

AT NORTH BILLERICA

Business at Both Mills in the Town Unusually Quiet

The few storekeepers of North Billerica are counting their depleted receipts and are looking forward anxiously to the coming of the Boston & Maine repair shops to the village, for the stagnation in woolen manufacturing is showing serious effects upon the pretty and enterprising little village on the Concord. "My receipts," said one of the village storekeepers to a reporter of The Sun, "have dropped almost one-half from those of a year ago. Business at the postoffice has dropped and it is all due to the fact that business is slack at the Talbot and Faulkner mills which furnish a livelihood for the residents of the village. One of the best evidences of this slackness is the number of persons seen on the village streets during the morning hours. Ordinarily, the visitor to North Billerica during working hours finds only the market man and Chief of Police Martin Conway about town, but this morning the reporter at first thought that some local holiday was being observed on account of the comparatively large number of people about the village. Many of the mill operatives who have been thrown out of employment have packed up and moved to busier scenes, leaving empty tenements behind them. But the present period of slackness in all probability will not last long and North Billerica has ever been particularly fortunate as regards work in the mills, not having experienced any long shutdowns that have been reported from other textile places.

DROWNED HERSELF

Maude E. Eastman Crossed in Love, Suicides in Canal

Maude E. Eastman, aged 23 years, and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin S. Eastman of 15 May street, responded because her parents objected to her keeping company with a young man whose religion was different from hers, ended her life last night by jumping into the canal near the Pawtucket bridge.

No one saw her in the rash act and suspicion was not aroused until her coat, hat and handbag were found on the canal walk by two young men who were passing along the path. They turned the articles over to the police and early this morning after grappling irons had been used the body was recovered and removed to Undertaker Saunders' funeral parlors in Third street and subsequently taken to her home in May street.

Clothing Found on Bank

Two young men were passing along the canal walk shortly before 10 o'clock last night when they found the coat, hat and handbag. They gathered the articles together and were about to take them to the police station when they saw Wagon Officer John Dickson on his way to the police station and turned them over to him. The articles were of little interest except so far as they might cast some light on the identity of the owner. The bag was of black velvet and contained a mail box, handkerchief, a pocketbook, a small comb, a bottle of toothache gun, several postcards and a letter.

It was the letter which resulted in the police learning the identity of the young woman. It was written on both sides of a sheet of paper and that she premeditated suicide was evident, for all of the letter was written with a pen with the exception of a line at the bottom which said: "I am in canal—Maude Eastman," which was written with a lead pencil, evidently before she jumped into the water.

Miss Eastman was evidently in a greatly excited state of mind over a love affair, judging from the notes found in her bag. The note was addressed to her mother and read in part as follows:

"I am going to end it all. I am tired of living. I haven't been so bad as I have been pained."

"You won't have to make any trouble. I shall not be here to worry you. I am going I don't know where, but perhaps God will make a place for me."

House Advances Teachers' Bill

In the house yesterday afternoon the bill reported on Tuesday from the committee on cities providing for "more adequate salaries" for the teachers of the elementary schools of Boston was ordered to a third reading.

Nothing was apparently heard from the conference between Mayor Fitzgerald, Representative McMorris and ex-Atty. Gen. Herbert Parker. There was no debate on the bill in the house yesterday. After the bill had been ordered to a third reading Representative Montague gave notice that he would later move to substitute his general salary increase bill.

The bill extending for four years engineers' licenses to cover motors and engines operated by steam, gas, gasoline and electricity was pressed to be engrossed.

An amendment to the vihar bill was offered by Representative Forristall of Saugus that all rentablers shall be treated equally with the name of the owner and the tenants from which the vihar is made, in order that the purchaser may know what he is buying.

The amendment was opposed by Representative Brackett of Abington, who suggested that it was in the interests of certain New York manufacturers. The amendment was defeated on a voice vote and the bill was then passed to be engrossed on a roll-call, 100 to 77.

At the morning session Mr. Saunders of Clinton reported for the committee on judiciary the so-called Saunders bill, which would compensate the judges with a few minor changes. The bill was referred to ways and means.

The committee on federal relations reported a new draft of the Lomasney order relative to the treatment of American citizens in Russia.

Ways and means reported ought to pass on the bill to reconstitute teachers' agencies.

By a vote of 17 to 16 the house, after reconsidering its vote of Tuesday again refused to adopt the bill compensating John Henry Chance in the sum of $10,000 for imprisonment on the charge of murder, the governor having pardoned him on the ground that he was innocent.

The next matter taken up was the bill to incorporate the East Boston Municipal railroad company. Various amendments were defeated, including voters of East Boston, and the bill was then ordered to a third reading, 96 to 33.

WHERE INSECTS DWELL
USE CARBONOL

THE presence of ants and roaches is a sign of imperfect cleanliness.

Old houses or badly built ones are very hard to keep clean and accordingly a powerful disinfectant should be used so that if insects do come, they will find the place uncongenial.

Carbonol is better than insecticides and is not poisonous. Simply add a dash of it to the water used in cleaning and proceed in the usual manner. The vapor of Carbonol is obnoxious to insects and they will not stay near it.

Carbonol is a grease solvent and can be used to rinse out the kitchen sink and to wash greasy pans and dishes.

Carbonol is wonderful for removing stains of grease and oil.

When used on windows the Carbonol solution gives them a brilliant crystal clearness that astounds housekeepers.

We will send you a bottle free to experiment with.

MARY'S PRESENT GIFTS TO NAMESAKE QUEEN; GARTER INVESTITURE OF PRINCE OF WALES

LONDON, June 22.—The garter figure, who expects some day to become a figure handsomely in the coronation feast, King Edward VIII., was invested with the Order of the Garter. The ceremony of the king and queen the morning was highly formal and solemn. Prince of Wales, their sixteen-year-old ex-king Manuel of Portugal and the Duke of Connaught being conspicuous figures in the procession. An interesting feature of the coronation period was the presentation to Queen Mary of the insignia of the garter, to the purchase of which thousands of women of the empire named Mary contributed. It consists of four pieces. The garter itself, which her majesty wears on her left arm, is of blue ribbed silk, edged with borders of brilliants, bearing the motto "Honi soit qui mal y pense" in brilliants. The buckle and pin are of large brilliants. The garter terminates in a floral design, with a single drop brilliant forming a pendant. The badge contains a finely carved sardonyx cameo of St. George and the dragon, around which is the motto of the order in diamonds. This is encircled by a border of larger brilliants. Surrounding the badge is a floral design in larger brilliants terminating in a ring of diamonds, into which fits a bottle designed loop, attaching the blue silk ribbon to the badge itself. The star of eight points is of diamonds. In the center is the plain cross of St. George in specially cut rubies of unusually fine color, encircled by the motto of the order in diamonds in a royal blue enamel garter. This is again surrounded by a circle of fine diamonds. The shoulder brooch, which consists of a double row of fine brilliants, five in each row, is used to secure the ribbon to the dress. The insignia is contained in a case bearing a gold plate with the following inscription: "Presented to Her Majesty Queen Mary, in Loyal Homage from the Marys of the Empire, as a Coronation Gift, June 22d, 1911."

The star of eight points is of diamonds. In the center is the plain cross of St. George in specially cut rubies of unusually fine color, encircled by the motto of the order in diamonds in a royal blue enamel garter. This is again surrounded by a circle of fine diamonds. The shoulder brooch, which consists of a double row of fine brilliants, five in each row, is used to secure the ribbon to the dress. The insignia is contained in a case bearing a gold plate with the following inscription: "Presented to Her Majesty Queen Mary, in Loyal Homage from the Marys of the Empire, as a Coronation Gift, June 22d, 1911."

The Y. M. C. I. baseball team will go to Tyngsboro Saturday afternoon, where they will meet the strong team representing that town. The manager of the Y. M. C. I. would like to meet all of the players at the Bowdoin way to night at 7:30.

FATHER RELEASED

BOY THE MEANS OF REUNITING HIS PARENTS

PLYMOUTH, June 22.—Richard F. Smith, formerly of Brockton, who was recently brought from St. Joseph, Mo., charged with kidnapping his six-year-old son Richard, was placed on probation by Judge Fox in the superior court yesterday after the boy had been the means of reconciling Smith and his wife, who had been separated several years.

The boy did not know his mother when she met the officers who had the father in custody at Worcester. An affecting scene followed, in which Mrs. Smith tried to reconstruct her image in the boy's memory.

While waiting for the case to be called in court yesterday, husband and wife talked together for more than an hour, and the son sitting by their side joined now and then in the conversation. The result was the Smiths decided to re-unite for the sake of their son.

Upon the separation of the couple, the Suffolk probate court gave the boy, who was then about 3 years old, into the custody of his mother and he was placed in Brockton. Here his father visited him. It was charged, and took him to Missouri.

THREE PITCHERS THE LYNN TEAM IN CLOSE GAME

Wakefield Boys Are Some Twirlers

Another Wakefield boy has entered the big league ranks in Frank A. Harrington, star pitcher on the Boston college team. Harrington leaves today for Pittsburg. He has been sought by a number of big league scouts for some time.

Harrington has just been elected captain of the Boston college nine for next season. He has just completed his junior year at the college, where he stood high in his classes and won honors. Besides being a popular athlete, he has also won distinction for the college in debating circles, being a speaker on the Fulton prize debate and a member of the debating team which defeated Georgetown university at Washington in April.

Before going to Boston college Harrington played with Holy Cross college of Worcester, making the team in his freshman year and alternating in the box and in the outfield. With Boston college he has lost two games in two years, both being by one run. He has speed, good control and exceptional coolness, and his friends are confident he will make good in his major league debut.

Besides his college career Harrington has played considerable semi-professional baseball in and around Boston and in Canada. Last summer he pitched for the St. John, N. B. team and while there attracted the attention of several major league scouts by his record, with the result that he finally was persuaded to sign with Pittsburg. He has also played with Hopedale and other teams in the New England league. Harrington is the third of his family to enter the professional baseball ranks, all three brothers being pitchers. His older brother, Joe, recently signed a contract with the Detroit team and is now at Newcastle, Pa. He was formerly pitcher and captain of the university of Rochester team. Bill, a younger brother, though only 18 years old, signed this spring with the Lynn team, and is now one of the leading pitchers in the New England league. All three brothers are popular in Wakefield, where they played on the high school and town teams.

Objects to Decision of League Officers

The following letter in relation to the Lynn-Lowell forfeited game, May 30 tells its own story:

"By the latest order of President Murnane of the New England league, the game won by Lynn from Lowell Memorial day morning, May 30, is to be played over on the first revisit of Lynn to Lowell.

"This arbitrary and unjust ruling is contested by the management of the Lynn team because it strikes at the vital principle of a game in which fairness is the predominating characteristic—the taking away of the winning team's rights to a fairly won game.

"The facts are these: By an agreement between the umpire, Thomas Fleming, Manager Gray of the Lowell team, and Capt. McDevitt of the Lynn team, the game was to be called at 12 o'clock, providing the teams had played the legal number of innings to constitute a game, and the innings were even. These requirements were complied with, and the score was 6 to 5 in favor of Lynn. Umpire Fleming awarded the game to Lynn. The agreement was made in order that the teams might reach Lynn in time to play the afternoon game.

"The evidence in support of this statement of facts is overwhelming. The umpire reported to Secretary Jacob C. Morse of the league, that the game was won by Lynn, and Mr. Morse authorized the Associated Press to correct the standing of the clubs, giving Lynn one more game won, and the Lowell team one more game lost, which had not been done because of erroneous statements sent out from Lowell.

"Under date of June 5, President Murnane promulgated a decision, based on evidence, confirming that of Secretary Morse, to the effect that the game should stand as played, and be awarded to the Lynn club, 6 to 5, the score at the end of seven completed innings.

"Under date of June 12, President Murnane promulgated a new decision reversing his previous ruling, announcing that the game had been thrown out, and should be played over on the next visit of Lynn to Lowell.

"The reason for this sudden shift of position is not clear. Manager Gray denies that he entered into an agreement to call the game at 12 o'clock. Surely President Murnane would not reverse his decision on the unsupported statement of a contending manager, for justice would be too far outraged in not giving a hearing to both sides before taking such an important step. No such hearing was given. President Murnane offers as an explanation that agreements to shorten games are untenable, but here again he is at fault, for the practice of the New England league, and all minor leagues, authorizes such agreements. Precedents in abundance are available.

"The Lowell manager claims that the umpire forfeited the game to Lowell, 9 to 0, because Lynn refused to continue. Lynn did not refuse to continue, as the evidence proves, but for the purpose of the argument, to give Mr. Murnane all the latitude he wants, grant that the umpire did forfeit the game, then there is no reason for the extraordinary decision to replay the game, for it belonged to Lowell on that hypothesis. But the umpire did not forfeit the game, as his official report proves.

"The real motive for this back action decision will sooner or later be made clear, as it is the intention of the Lynn management to push the matter to a conclusion. We cannot but feel that this decision is adverse to the best interests of the game.

"We present these facts that the baseball public may understand why we shall appeal first to the New England league directors, and second, if necessary, to the national board of arbitration.

"We ask the league directors for nothing more than our rights, and these we are determined to have, especially when they run parallel to the best traditions of the great sport of the American people. Of what value is it to fairly win games and then have them taken away by the stroke of a pen? No jury of fans would render such a verdict on the sacred facts. The integrity of the New England league is threatened by such arbitrary actions, hostile alike to the spirit of the game and the earnest athletes who strive for victory. We ask that the widest publicity be given to our inflexible purpose to contest the decision to the last resort, in the interests of honorable sport.

New Bedford Took Victory From Lowell

NEW BEDFORD, June 22.—New Bedford defeated the league leaders, 3 to 2, yesterday. Pruitt kept his hits well scattered and was strong in light places. The champions had good chances to score in the sixth and seventh, but clever pitching by Warwick held them runless. The fielding of Rising was a feature. The score:

WASHINGTON INFILDER HAS PROVED TO BE A "COMEBACK"

WASHINGTON, June 22.—Talking of "comebacks," Herman Schaefer, his hitting and his fast work on the Washingtons' veteran infielder, furnishes an interesting illustration. Until he was placed on first base "Germany" did not look like he had much longer to stay in first company, but ever since then he has played as good a game of ball as has been seen here in many a day. The most surprising feature of Schaefer's work is his hitting and his fast work on the bases. He is one of the fastest men on the team and uses rare judgment. With Schaefer going as he is there is no occasion for the club to make any special effort to find a first baseman. Schaefer is filling the bill most satisfactorily, and it would be no easy matter to find a player who could replace him.

ceived a tempting offer from Terre Haute, Ind. Spring did not accompany the team on its southern trip, but will remain a member of the Lowell team until he gets a position elsewhere.

The Palmers and South Ends, the rival aspirants for the championship of the South country, will play a blood game at the common on Saturday afternoon for a purse of $50.

CHILD ESCAPED
By Displaying Great Presence of Mind

SWAMPSCOTT, June 22.—Displaying rare presence of mind for a child of such tender years, little Ethel Carroll, the 5-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Carroll of Swampscott, yesterday escaped being killed by a train on the Marblehead branch of the R. & M. R. R. by grasping two wires and hanging over the bridge while the train crossed the highway 10 feet in the air.

Ethel Carroll and her brother, a little more than two years her senior, had climbed the high embankment upon which is located the railroad, and while at play on the bridge the train from Marblehead, due to Lynn shortly after 4, rounded a curve.

The little boy shouted to his sister. He managed to fly to safety, but the little girl was not so fortunate. As the train thundered along, with the engineer doing his utmost to bring it to a standstill, Ethel did what many an older person would not have thought of.

Along the side of the bridge run two wires which operate the switches, and with rare presence of mind, she reached over, grabbed a wire with each hand, and then swung her body downward. She managed to hold on while the train crossed the bridge and was still clinging on for her life when George Colby, rear brakeman on the train swung off his train and ran back and rescued her from her perilous position.

The incident created considerable stir in the neighborhood as a number of people witnessed the escape of the child.

She was as cool and collected after being restored to her feet and had joined her brother as she was while she was devising a scheme to escape the crushing train.

MONEY TALKS
SAYS JUDGE DEWEY IN FILING A SUIT

BOSTON, June 22.—Money talks in the United States says ex-Judge Dewey in another remarkable motion filed in the office of Clerk Francis A. Campbell of the superior court yesterday in his $76,000,000 suit against Laurence Minot of 415, members of the executive committee of the Good Government association, for alleged libelous statements concerning his candidacy for mayor several years ago. He says he never intends to surrender to the defendants in this action.

Judge Sherman overruled a motion for a new trial and Judge Dewey, who refers to himself as Brig. Gen. Henry S. Dewey, and to Judge Sherman as Greivt Major Edgar J. Sherman, styles his motion, "Brig. Gen. Dewey's motion to suppress a democratic bill of reasons, filed by Greivt Major Edgar J. Sherman, Aug. 17, 1909." He says the so-called bill of reasons "is false and democratic, said bill being styled 'Decision of the court overruling a motion for a new trial.'"

The former Judge also filed two motions for leave to amend his answers to interrogatories in that suit.

In the principal motion referred to he says: "And Brig. Gen. Dewey for himself further suggests that money talks in the United States, and that the gold eagles of the United States talk in part as follows: 'Trust—Liberty—Union—in God—We—Trust—Liberty—United States of America—Ten dollars—and that said money talk being interpreted means that the republican form of government is established for the United States of America and for each and all of the states of America and is established by the rejection of a democratic form of government and the acknowledgment of comparative distrust in all human agencies.'"

He asserts that the bill of reasons filed by Greivt Major Sherman (Judge Sherman) in overruling his motion for a new trial tends to deny "the appropriate and unbecoming and essential liberties," etc., "to each and every republican juror." and to his republican best girl." This last phrase doubtless refers to the constitutional guarantee to every man and woman.

CURED BABY'S ECZEMA

Mothers who have watched their babies suffering from eczema will be delighted to know that Comfort Powder which is recommended by so many physicians and nurses has cured many cases of eczema. It stops the itching, right away and lets the little one sleep, yet is entirely harmless. All skin irritations, mild rashes and chafings disappear when Comfort Powder is used. Dr. A. B. Chapin, Aurora, N. C., says: "It cured a child of a very bad case of eczema on the face." E. S. Sykes' private and unobtainable and essential name is on the genuine.

Anty Drudge Gives Advice to the Salesman.

Salesman—"I have a patent washbottle which burns denatured alcohol at much less cost than coal or wood."

Anty Drudge—"You'd better go into some other business, young man, if you want to make a living. Since I've been telling the women how to wash clothes with Fels-Naptha in cool or lukewarm water, without boiling, all kinds of washbottles have gone out of style. Good day."

Fels-Naptha will take grease out of clothes in cool or lukewarm water.

It loosens all kinds of grease quick as a wink, and takes out every trace of the spot. That's why butchers', and painters', and machinists' clothing can be washed better with Fels-Naptha than any other way.

It's easier, too; in summer or winter, requires no boiling, hot water nor hard rubbing, and makes a better job of it.

Because Fels-Naptha dissolves grease almost instantly, women who have tried it prefer Fels-Naptha to any other soap for washing dishes.

There is no necessity for putting the hands in hot water.

Puts a fine polish on glass and china.

It is likewise superior in cleaning coats, or rugs, or curtains, or anything else that has become spotted or soiled.

In fact, you will find that anything cleanable can be cleaned quicker and better and easier with Fels-Naptha.

And for laundry purposes, Fels-Naptha is a revelation to women who have always washed in the old-fashioned, washboiler-and-hard-rubbing way.

Directions for all purposes are printed on the back of the red and green wrapper.

IN CENTRALVILLE

Fireworks Display to be Held

A large and enthusiastic meeting of the business men and residents of West Centralville was held last night in the quarters of Hose 12 in West Sixth street, the purpose of which was to discuss the idea of having fireworks in that district on the evening of July 4th.

Capt. Herbert A. Merrill of Hose 12, who has the welfare of the residents of that district at heart, was the instigator of the movement. He has seen personally a large number of business men and residents of the West Centralville district and after explaining his "scheme," as he called it, a meeting was called for last night.

CAPT. HERBERT A. MERRILL, Centralville Fire House.

About forty men were present, and the captain called to order at 8 o'clock. After a few appropriate remarks, in which the captain explained the purpose of the meeting, he called upon the assembly to elect a chairman and a committee to go along with the work.

Councilman Charles A. Delaronde was chosen chairman, and the committee is composed of the following: Thomas F. Garvey, treasurer; E. J. Laroche, secretary; James A. Burns, Eugene Vincent.

Subscriptions will be taken up from house to house by the members of the committee and five other men who were chosen by the latter to act as aids. Those men are: Narcisse Gadois, Ernest Maile, Charles McKenzle, Eugene Morin and Emile Fontaine.

The territory of West Centralville has been divided by districts, and the following men will solicit in their respective districts as follows: Messrs. Delaronde and Gadois, from Cumberland road to Bridge street, between Exeter and Ennells streets; Messrs. Burns and McKenzle, the northern

A Few Facts About LIVER TROUBLE.

A dull, sluggish liver always brings a dull, sluggish feeling to the entire body. When the liver works properly the blood courses through the body in a bright red stream. When the liver is inactive the blood becomes dull and muddy, and it is full of poisonous matter. A great many people try to get a fine, clear, pink and white complexion by rubbing things on their faces. They might rub a lifetime and the same yellow complexion would remain—for the liver causes it. Only bright, red blood brings fine complexion. Blood, loaded with impurities from the liver sends the impurities out through the pores of the skin and turns the skin a brownish yellow.

To get rid of the dull, heavy feeling and muddy, yellow complexion get the liver to working again. Two 50c bottles of BLOODING will do it nine times out of ten. If you are troubled with Constipation and Straining use BLOODING LIVER PILLS with the BLOODING.

Each solicitor will be supplied with a credential signed by all members of the committee, and the people are requested not to give to any other.

The fireworks will be held on the vacant lot next to the first station in West Sixth street, opposite St. Louis church.

Another meeting will be held Thursday evening, June 29, to which all the citizens of West Centralville are invited. The funds will be solicited in West Centralville, for this will be a sort of family affair and just for the residents of that district.

The Academy of Music was crowded to the doors last evening at the 23rd annual entertainment by the pupils of St. Patrick's Boys' school. The program will be repeated tonight for the accommodation of those who were unable to obtain seats last evening, and the members of the graduating class will receive diplomas at mass in St. Patrick's church next Sunday.

The feature of last evening's entertainment was the presentation of the four-act drama "Marcus, the Roman Martyr," written by Rev. Bernard Lucking, C. E. E. R. and given by the pupils of the school. The play is powerful and strong in dramatic situations, which the boys carried out most successfully. WAKE UP!

JUST to keep in cold storage for the summer, so as to be ready and fit to brave the winter breezes of the antarctic as Harry Whitney's pilot in February, 1912, Captain Bob Bartlett (no one could ever call him Robert after once grasping his hand) has taken a small party of sportsmen up to the northern regions until September.

Then with the ironclad ship that Harry Whitney has purchased, but has not yet named, they will sail away down the coast of both Americas until they come to Punta Arenas, in Chile, where they will re-enforce their supplies, establish a home base and sail for Coats Land some time in February, before navigation is closed.

They will be in a merry race for the honor of planting the stars and stripes on the south pole, to duplicate the flag Peary left at the north pole. The English expedition under Captain Scott has already left New Zealand.

Captain Robert Falcon Scott left Cardiff on the 15th of June, 1910, on a voyage of discovery having as its object the south pole. His ship, the Terra Nova, is an old Dundee whaler, built a quarter of a century ago, but thoroughly refitted and remodeled for its antarctic journey. One of those who wished success to Scott when he left England was Bob Bartlett, then in Europe with Peary.

Scott's route is from New Zealand southward. His southern base will be Macmurdo sound, almost directly opposite Coats Land, where Whitney and Bartlett expect to start their "dash" to the pole. The Scott expedition proposed to reach Macmurdo sound by January, 1911, when twenty-two men were to be landed to form a western party, with a hut, provisions and equipment, and establish a winter station. Later they will go south to lay depots. By the end of February the western party will have established a system of depots south of the ice barrier.

With Scott are a number of other British officers and scientists. The expedition left Cardiff with provisions enough for three years.

Of several wealthy clubmen who announced their intention of going north with Peary on his recent successful expedition to the north pole Whitney alone "made good." Finally opposition and other considerations deterred the others. They never started.

But when the Roosevelt sailed from New Bedford July 9, 1905, Harry Whitney was on board.

He afterward separated from Peary, Bartlett and the rest and busied himself with hunting big game in Ellesmere Land. It was then he encountered Dr. Cook, an encounter that brought him much unwelcome fame on his return to civilization.

Whitney is tall, spare and wiry. He is about thirty-eight years old. Like himself, his father, the late Stephen Whitney, was a lover of sport in many forms. Although it has been often stated that the family is related to Eli Whitney, inventor of the cotton gin, this is not the case.

Once he bought a ranch in Arizona and while there had one of the narrowest escapes from death of his whole eventful career. He was riding on a mustang 100 miles from Tucson, the nearest town, when an insect got into his ear and began to sting him, causing the most excruciating pain. He did all he could to dislodge the insect, but in vain. Realizing that his position was desperate, he put spurs to his horse and went galloping at top speed over the 100 miles between him and human aid at Tucson. When he at last reached there he was nearly raving mad from the pain. People thought him a lunatic.

What would have happened to him in a problem if an Elks' pin which he wore had not aroused the interest of some members of that order who encountered him. They had him taken to a hospital, where doctors located the trouble and performed an operation on his ear. If he had not made such speed to Tucson and reached

After years of voyaging over the ocean he obtained his captain's certificate. He then took his first plunge into arctic exploration, going north with Peary in 1898 as first mate with his uncle, Captain Samuel Bartlett. After that he made two trips under another uncle, Captain John Bartlett, to Hudson bay.

In 1905 Captain Bob commanded the Roosevelt, Peary's ship. He was the youngest skipper who ever commanded on a polar expedition. After the Roosevelt returned to New York he superintended the rebuilding of the vessel and was again in command of her when she started in 1908 on the expedition in search of the north pole that was destined to be successful.

Bartlett took the Roosevelt to Cape Sheridan, farther north than any vessel ever went under steam. Before there before being driven quite out of his senses by the pain he would have perished in the desert wastes about that town.

Whitney has been four times to the arctic in 1901 and 1902, with Peary in 1905 and with Paul Riney and Bob Bartlett last summer. His 1902 expedition was a sealing voyage. He has written a book and several magazine articles about his adventures. But, unlike other explorers, he has not become a lecturer. That is by no means in the line of "the silent sportsman."

Captain Bob comes of a family of seafarers. His father, Captain William Bartlett, was a skipper. Bob was born in Briggs, N. F., Aug. 18, 1875. After going through public schools there he went to Bishop Field college at St. John's, N. F. His parents wanted him to go into business, but the smell of the salt was in his nostrils. Shipping as an ordinary seaman before the mast, he went to Brazil while still a boy.

doing that he made Peary agree to let him participate in the overland dash for the pole instead of sticking by his ship. Bob commanded one of the advance sledge parties and got to within five days' march of the pole.

A German expedition already fitted out purposes to make for the very point which Captain Bartlett has in view, but cannot reach it until later.

In addition to Captain Scott's expedition, which is now on its way, and the German one, there is also a Japanese expedition on the way to the south pole. The Japanese are not very well financed and have a small ship, only 160 tons.

With a Norwegian expedition also projected, there will altogether be five competitors in the race for the south pole.

As Captain Bob became an American citizen in April, England can put in no claim if he is the lucky first one at the southern peg of that great old spinning top, the earth.

pink, and the best man was Mr. William Sheehan.

After the ceremony the couple and a large number of their relatives and friends repaired to the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Henry W. O'Brien, 517 High street, where a reception was held. A dainty repast was served and a fine musical program was in order.

Mr. and Mrs. Sheehan left on the 9.33 train for a wedding tour to parts unknown. They will return in a couple of weeks and will make their home in Central street.

HARRINGTON-WELCH

One of the prettiest nuptial events of the season was performed yesterday afternoon at the Immaculate Conception church, the contracting parties being Mr. Dennis Arthur Harrington and Miss Elizabeth Agnes Welch. The marriage was solemnized at 4.30 o'clock by the Rev. Dennis A. Sullivan, M. I.

The bride wore champagne silk with beaded trimmings, and had a large picture hat. She carried lilies of the valley. The bride-maid, Miss Margaret Beardon of Medway, a cousin of the bride, wore white net over pink, with a large pink picture hat and carried sweet peas.

A supper at the home of the bride, 495 High street followed, among the large number of friends present being some from Medway, Manchester, N. H., Somerville, Melrose and Waltham. Mr. and Mrs. Harrington left on a wedding tour including New York City, Atlantic City and Washington, D. C., returning by way of North Adams. They will be at home by 495 High street after the first of August.

TELEPHONE ALARM

FIRE STARTED IN AMOS P. BEST'S AUTOMOBILE

A telephone alarm at 3:23 o'clock yesterday summoned a portion of the fire department to the property of A. P. Best at 462 Mammoth road to extinguish a fire which threatened to destroy his automobile.

Mr. Best was cleaning the cylinders and neglected to turn the spark off with the result that the brush he was using came in contact with the spark and caused a slight blaze. He sent a telephone alarm into the central fire station and several pieces of apparatus were soon on the scene. A stream from an extinguisher put an end to the fire.

At Work on Repair Shop
Site, Driving Stakes

While there is nothing definite as to when the Boston and Maine will start the building of the repair shops in North Billerica the fact remains that a large crew of engineers has been and are now working daily at the site and already two carloads of stakes have been driven at different points in the land, a fact that would indicate that the company is soon to start on the work above the ground. It is understood that the company is soon to flood the tract of land with some 1500 Italian laborers who will complete the clearing off of the site in comparatively short time.

PURE FOOD LAW

President Taft Urges Congress to Amend It at Once

WASHINGTON, June 22.—In a message prepared in New York and transmitted through the White House yesterday to congress President Taft scathingly denounced the manufacturers of what he denounced as "dangerous drug frauds" and urged congress to amend at this session the pure food and drug law in strengthening that act in vital points of weakness recently pointed out by decisions of the United States supreme court.

President Taft believes that unless the law is amended forthwith the country will again be flooded by "poisonous nostrums" and "quack-allies" which were common before the pure food law was enacted.

The message was transmitted both to the senate and house and it was said today that the latter body probably would take the matter up at an early day. Representative Sharkey of Kentucky already has introduced a bill bearing on the subject.

The president's message follows: "To the Senate and House of Representatives:—

"Your attention is respectfully called to the necessity of passing at this session an amendment to the food and drug act of June 30, 1906, which will supplement existing law and prevent the shipment in interstate and foreign commerce and the manufacture and sale within the territories and the district of Columbia of worthless nostrums labeled with mis-statements of fact as to their physiological action—mis-statements false and misleading even in the knowledge of those who make them.

"On June 30, 1906, after an agitation of twenty years, the food and drug act passed by the fifty-ninth congress received the approval of the president and became law. The purpose of the measure was two-fold, first, to prevent the adulteration of foods and drugs within the jurisdiction of the federal government, and second, to prevent any false labeling of food and drugs that will deceive the people into the belief that they are securing other than that for which they ask and which they have the right to get.

"The law was received with general satisfaction and has been vigorously enforced. More than $2,000,000 cases have been prepared for criminal prosecution against the shippers of adulterated or mis-branded foods and drugs and seizures have been made of more than 700 shipments of such articles. More than two-thirds of these cases have been begun since March 4, 1909. Of the criminal cases more than 500 have terminated favorably to the government, and of the shipments seized more than 450 have been condemned and either re-labeled or destroyed. In every case in which the food seized was deleterious to health it was destroyed. A large number of cases are now pending.

"The supreme court has held in a recent decision (United States vs. O. A. Johnson, opinion May 22, 1911), that the food and drug act does not cover the knowingly false labeling of nostrums as to curative effect or physiological action, and that inquiry under this salutary statute does not by its terms extend in any case to the inefficacy of medicines to work the cures claimed for them on the labels. It follows that, without fear of punishment under the law, unscrupulous persons, knowing the medicines to have no curative or remedial value for the diseases for which they indicate them, may ship in interstate commerce medicines composed of substances containing any slight physiological action and labeled as cures for diseases, which, in the present state of science, are recognized as incurable.

"An evil which menaces the general health of the people strikes at the life of the nation. In my opinion the sale of dangerously adulterated drugs or the sale of drugs under knowingly false claims as to their effect in disease constitutes such an evil and warrants me in calling the matter to the attention of the congress.

"Fraudulent representations of the curative values of nostrums not only operate to defraud purchasers but are a distinct menace to the public health. There are none so credulous as sufferers from diseases. The need is urgent for legislation which will prevent the raising of false hopes of cures of serious ailments by misstatements of fact as to worthless mixtures on which the sick will rely while their diseases progress unchecked.

"At the time the food and drug act was passed there were current in commerce literally thousands of dangerous frauds labeled as cures for every case of cholera, consumption and all lung diseases, cures for all kidney, liver and malarial troubles, cures for diabetes, cures for tumor and cancer, cures for all forms of heart disease, in fact, cures for all the ills known at the present day.

"The labels of many of these so-called cures indicated their use for diseases of children. They were not only utterly useless in the treatment of the disease but in many cases were positively injurious. If a tribe of these statements had been true, no one with access to the remedies which bore them need have died from any cause other than accident or old age.

Unfortunately the statements were not true. The shameful fact is that those who deal in such preparations know they are deceiving credulous and ignorant unfortunates who suffer from some of the greatest ills to which the flesh of this day is subject. No physician of standing in his profession, no matter to what school of medicine he may belong, entertains the slightest idea that any of these preparations will work the wonders promised on the labels.

"Prior to the recent decision of the supreme court the officers charged with the enforcement of the law regarded false and misleading statements concerning the curative value of nostrums as mis-branding, and there was a general acquiescence in this view by the proprietors of the nostrums. Many pretended cures in consequence were withdrawn from the market and the proprietors of many other alleged cures eliminated false and extravagant claims from their labels, either voluntarily or under the compulsion of criminal prosecution. Nearly 100 criminal prosecutions on this charge were concluded in the federal courts by pleas of guilty and the imposition of fines. More than 150 cases of the same nature involving some of the riskiest frauds by which the American people were ever deceived are pending now and must be dismissed.

"If fear of no remedial legislation be granted at this session that the good which has already been achieved in regard to these nostrums will be undone and the people of the country will be deprived of a powerful safeguard against dangerous fraud. Of course, as pointed out by the supreme court, any attempt to legislate more exacting standards of opinion will be abortive, nevertheless if knowingly false mis-statements of fact as to the effect of the preparations be provided against the greater part of the evil will be subject to control.

"The statute can be easily amended to include the evil I have described. I recommend that this be done at once as a matter of emergency."

THE POWDER TRUST

The U. S. Circuit Court Says It Restrains Trade

WILMINGTON, Del., June 22.—The U. S. circuit court handed down a decision yesterday declaring that the alleged powder trust, which is controlled by the E. I. du Pont de Nemours company, is a combination in restraint of interstate commerce in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law; that it attempted to monopolize and has monopolized a part of such commerce and that the combination shall be enjoined from continuing this violation and shall be dissolved.

The action against the powder trust was begun by the government in 1907 against 42 corporate and individual defendants. The suit as to 15 of the defendants was dismissed because some of the concerns are out of existence or it was not shown that they were parties to the combination.

The court in an interlocutory decree dated Oct. 12 as the date to hear both sides as to the nature of the injunction to be granted and consider a "plan for dissolving said combination, which shall be submitted by the petitioner and the defendant or any of them, to the end that this court may ascertain and determine upon a plan or method for such dissolution which will not deprive the defendants of the opportunity to recreate, out of the elements now composing said combination, a new condition which shall be honestly in harmony with and not repugnant to the law.

The decision was written by Judge

Health For Sick Women

We know of no other medicine which has been so successful in relieving the suffering of women, or secured so many genuine testimonials, as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

In almost every community you will find women who have been restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Almost every woman you meet has either been benefited by it, or knows some one who has.

In the Pinkham Laboratory are files containing over one million one hundred thousand letters from women seeking health, in which many openly state over their own signatures that they have regained their health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has saved many women from surgical operations.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is made exclusively from roots and herbs, and is perfectly harmless.

The reason why it is so successful is because it contains ingredients which act directly upon the female organism, restoring it to healthy and normal activity.

Thousands of unsolicited and genuine testimonials such as the following prove the efficiency of this simple remedy.

Coloma, Wisconsin. — "For three years I was troubled with female weakness, irregularities, backache and bearing down pains. I saw an advertisement of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and decided to try it. After taking several bottles I found it was helping me, and I must say that I am perfectly well now and can not thank you enough for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me."

— Mrs. John Wentland, R. F. D., No. 3, Box 60, Coloma, Wisconsin.

Women who are suffering from those distressing ills peculiar to their sex should not lose sight of these facts or doubt the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore their health.

EVENTS OF THE DAY IN CARTOON

competitors out of business or to coerce them into a sale to or union with the combination, it puts a restraint upon interstate commerce and monopoly or attempts to monopolize a part of that commerce in a sense that violates the antitrust act."

Discussing the form of the injunction, the court is guided largely by the action taken by the supreme court in the Standard Oil and Tobacco cases.

"To stop the business of the combination immediately," the court says, "might be attended with very disastrous consequences. The defendants, or some of them, for example, furnish military and ordnance powders to the U. S. government."

"We understand also that they furnish explosives used in the construction of the Panama canal. Their ability to continue so to do should not be destroyed before the expiration of a reasonable time for adjusting their business to the changed conditions."

DIED SUDDENLY

BOY PASSED AWAY AFTER HAVING TEETH PULLED

WESTBORO, June 22.—William Fournier, 13 years old, died suddenly yesterday forenoon at the Lyman hospital.

The boy, whose home was in Amesbury, collapsed in the dentist's chair following extraction of several teeth for which an anesthetic had been administered.

Previous to the extraction of the teeth the boy was examined by Dr. Thomas A. Ayre in the presence of a nurse and the dentist and was believed to be in good physical health, it is said.

Supt. Emer L. Coffeen of the Lyman school notified Dr. Charles S. Knight of Westboro, medical examiner, who viewed the body but would not say what he thought caused death. He reported the matter to Dist. Atty. Jas. A. Stiles and is awaiting instructions as to an autopsy.

Supt. Coffeen said the school physician and nurse were in attendance during the extraction and that every care was taken.

The boy was committed to the school Tuesday afternoon on a charge of larceny, and was in the hospital, not having been assigned to any cottage. The boy's father, Frank Fournier, was notified yesterday afternoon and is expected to come for the body.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

The presentation of that most enjoyable romantic comedy, "Her Broken Idol," at the Merrimack Square theatre this week, is scoring heavily at each performance. The work of Miss McDonough, the Lowell girl who is engaged in the cast, is of special interest to local patrons. This young woman has already displayed unusual ability in the part to which she is assigned and gives encouraging promise for the future. Mr. Snow and Miss Anderson are both pleasantly cast and their endeavors to please are being met with the approval of all. "Her Broken Idol" is among the very best and cleverest plays seen on a local stage. Special attention is given to the stage dressing of the piece. The members of the company will hold a reception Saturday afternoon.

Among the other numbers included in the week's bill, the singing of Miss May E. Whiteley, one of Lowell's talented vocalists, is among the best. Simpson and Smith are first class comedienne entertainers, and Christine, the ventriloquist, gives a clever demonstration of his work. The motion pictures include "A Trip to Niagara Falls," one of the finest of its kind shown.—Adv.

LAKEVIEW THEATRE

It is pleasing to the management of Lakeview theatre to note that the people of Lowell and surrounding towns have taken to the stock company so early. The theatre last evening was well filled and also at the matinee, showing that the good reports spread about this company have had the desired effect and that the public will go to good attractions properly presented. Those who have seen this company and the play, "The Man of the Hour," are all of the one opinion, that it is one of the best companies ever seen here. The play itself, every one knows, is one of the best of the latest political plays, and dealing as it does with the present day municipal graft, is a play up to date. There is a matinee every day, excepting Mondays. This company has selected that well known play of "Raffles, the Amateur Cracksman" for next week's attraction, and it is safe to say that they will give it a first class production.—Adv.

THEATRE VOYONS

Today the Theatre Voyons shows as its feature picture an excellent adaptation of one of the clearest of Richard Harding Davis' stories of real life, "Van Bibber's Experiment." This story tells of a club man, a close student of nature, who when he finds a crook trying to break into his home, instead of sending for the police, feeds the man and dresses him up and finally sends him and his wife west to begin life anew. The story is cleverly told and acted with just the kind of force to bring out the moral that there is good in the worst of men if it is only developed in the right way.—Adv.

SUPREME COURT

Decides That Phelps Must Die

BOSTON, June 22.—The conviction of Silas N. Phelps, aged 38, for the murder of Deputy Sheriff Emmett F. Haskins at the home of the defendant in Charlemont was upheld by the full bench of the supreme court yesterday. Defendant's exceptions were overruled. He must suffer death in the electric chair.

He had been employed at the Ramage paper company in Munroe. He was discharged by Supt. Penman on June 11, 1910, and he stabbed Penman about 4 o'clock the following morning. Deputy Sheriff Haskins, with a posse of six persons, went to Phelps' home. The latter refused to admit the deputy or to come out. Finally he fired a shot, killing the sheriff. Phelps escaped to the woods, but was caught.

A number of exceptions were taken in regard to the admissibility of evidence, all of which the court overruled. One exception was that the sheriff had no warrant and so was a trespasser, which justified the defendant in firing the shot. The court holds the sheriff had a right to force an entrance into the house, having suspected the defendant of stabbing Penman.

The court further says there is no case in which it was held that a defendant in a capital case has a right to have the jurors who have been sworn and impaneled kept together during a recess taken by the court before the impanelling of the jury is completed, and the exception relating to the matter was overruled.

White of Eggs for the Hair

Whites of eggs materially help in forming a lather when used in shampooing the hair and scalp.

They thicken the emulsion, and thus make a better vehicle for picking up and holding in suspension the smallest particles of dust and dirt, which are carried away finally by repeated rinsing in clean water. Birt's Head Wash contains whites of eggs, which is one of the reasons why it leaves the scalp and hair in such a delightfully clean, healthy condition after a shampoo with it.

It also contains glycerin, used everywhere for skin troubles; coconut oil, to prevent a dry, scaly condition and to give lustre to the hair; and a small amount of salicylic acid, which is an antiseptic that prevents the development of bacteria, putrefaction and disagreeable odors.

Use Birt's Head Wash regularly and you will get from it valuable help in curing dandruff, itching scalp, falling hair and other similar troubles.

In hygienic tubes 25c., at all druggists.

WILLIAMSON MAY DIE

It is Alleged He Was Shot By Harry Butts

BOSTON, June 22.—Disarmed with handcuffs, cleaned the weapon and alleged attempts to his wife, Harry Williamson, shot at 87 Tremont street, last night, and four shots, all of which took effect at 100.

Williamson, aged 35, also colored, of 71 Cannon street, at Camden street and Shawmut avenue. Williamson is at the City Hospital and will probably die.

The men had been acquainted some time and it is said that on several occasions Butts had reproached Williamson for his attentions to Mrs. Butts. They met at Shawmut avenue and Camden street about a last night and heated words followed.

Without warning, Butts, it is said, drew a 32-caliber revolver from his hip pocket and fired four shots. One entered Williamson's right lung and the other three lodged in his intestines. Williamson sank to the ground, standing within a few feet. Butts calmly lit a cigarette, took out his pocket handkerchief, cleaned the weapon and remarked to the spectators: "Now I've done it."

Dist. Atty. Pelletier was on an outward bound Shawmut avenue car at the time and within 20 yards of the shooting. He alighted and waited until Lawrence Oliver J. A. Sullivan came running up and placed Butts under arrest. The latter calmly accompanied the officer and while on the way to the patrol box told the officer the circumstances.

Williamson is a single.

After being booked Butts was taken to the hospital. It was said the men recognized each other and that Williamson accused Butts of shooting him, while Butts, in the presence of the officers and doctors, it is said, acknowledged the shooting.

Butts was formerly a cook in the U. S. navy and is said to have been discharged last March.

THOSE JUNE BRIDES.

I CAN'T understand this stuff that comes out in the papers every year about June brides," said the young man to an oldish man seated beside him on the trolley car.

"Easiest thing in the world, my boy," was the answer.

"But why select June? If you are going to be married why not in May or July or any other month?"

"My dear boy, at Christmas time or New Year's you make your girl a present of a diamond ring and ask for her heart. She gives it to you. For matrimony. Of course—of course. You at once begin wearing your old clothes, saving your pennies, borrowing from your friends, winning at poker, doing overwork and practicing all sorts of little schemes to get a few dollars ahead of the game."

"But what has this to do with June?"

"Why, it takes you from January to June to save the first month's rent on a flat and pay the preacher's fee, you, but on second thoughts I will and that's why it's the favorite month to marry you if you like."

JOE KERR.

OH, THAT MONEY.

The Old Millionaire—Well, if you won't have me, I suppose you will be a sister to me.

The Young Maiden—No, I don't have you well enough to be a sister to me.

The Young Man—You will marry me if you like.

Bathing Girl

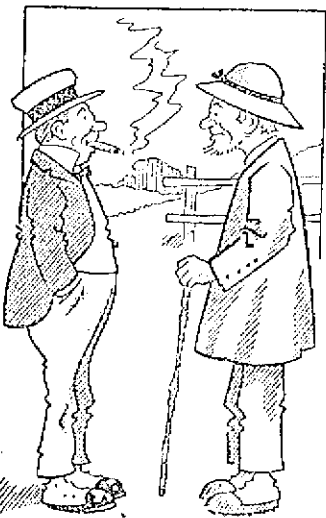

WHEN Peggy bathes she loves to wear A stylish costume, dainty-sweet, And tiny shoes upon her feet. When Peggy bathes she loves her feet. A pretty cap conceals her hair; From top to toe she's trim and neat. When Peggy bathes she loves to wear A stylish costume, dainty-sweet.

SHE does not venture very far, Because the waves might make her wet. Or disarrange her coiffure net; She does not venture very far, But on the margin like a star. She rises and is loath to set. She does not venture very far Because the waves might make her wet.

FOLLOWING IN HIS FOOTSTEPS.

Mrs. Justwed—How sweet of you, love, to admit that you were in the wrong.

Mr. Justwed—That's the way father always did. He used to say, "You've got to humor 'em, boy."

YANKEES' FAULT.

Yankee Tourist—I always thought that this part of England was full of beautiful ruined feudal castles.

Native—So it was, too, until yer bloomin' Hamerican hehresses married off all our dooks and put the castles in good repair, blast the luck.

The Stay at Home.

LET others go and suffocate In chambers six by nine. These torrid nights a hammock swung Upon the roof is fine. While broiling on a sandy beach Some foolish folks may please. I much prefer with book and pipe At home to take my ease.

YOU'RE welcome to your morning dip Within the rolling deep. Where crabs are fastened to your toes And eels around you creep. My tub of pure white porcelain As clean as clean can be, With sparkling shower bath attached. Is good enough for me.

Wayside Wisdom.

Sweet are the uses of perversity. The sayings that pass into song live longest in memory.

The milk of human kindness should never be skimmed.

One man is as good as another and oftentimes better.

A man should love whiskey wisely but not too well.

The pastor of a church should be the corrector of bad habits.

Where ignorance is bliss 'tis folly to establish a colored university.

There are men who are so constitutionally dull that even a thrashing will not make them smart.

There are two reasons why a joke may fail. One is that the man who heard it may be too dull to see the point. The other is that the joke may have no point to see.

There are some men born to lead men and some born to lead mules. The trouble comes when the mule leader puts himself forward as the leader of men.

THERE ARE A FEW.

"Where are you going to spend your vacation?"

"On a farm."

"Mosquitoes, hall room, skimmed milk and all that sort of thing, I suppose?"

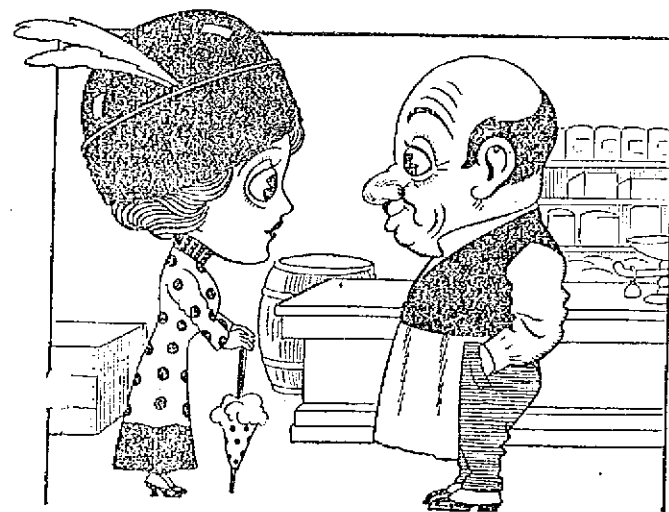

"No, this farm isn't a comic weekly farm; it is away out in the country."

THE HIGHTFLYERS.

You have named your aeroplane after your husband. Yes, indeed, but not as a compliment. Then why?

Because it smokes so much, can't be depended upon and half the time it is unmanageable.

MAN OF GRIT.

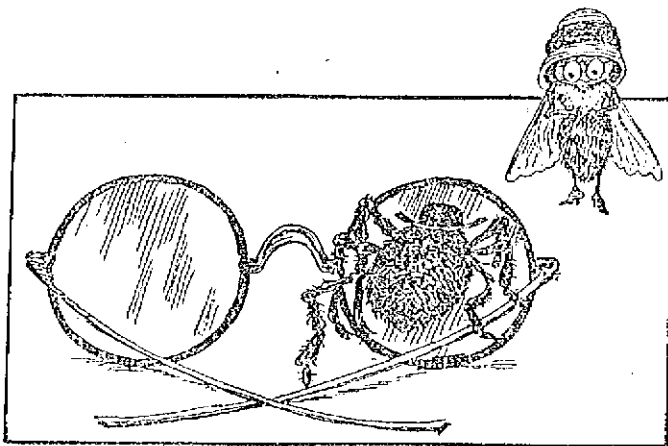

The Housekeeper—I'd like to have a box of your blackberries.

The Grocer—Indeed! It's a wonder you would come back after complaining about the sand in the last box of berries.

The Housekeeper—Oh, it is my appreciation of bravery that brings me back.

The Grocer—Appreciation of bravery?

The Housekeeper—Yes, I admire your grit.

NO WONDER.

Spider—Glimp! Yonder comes the biggest fly I ever saw!

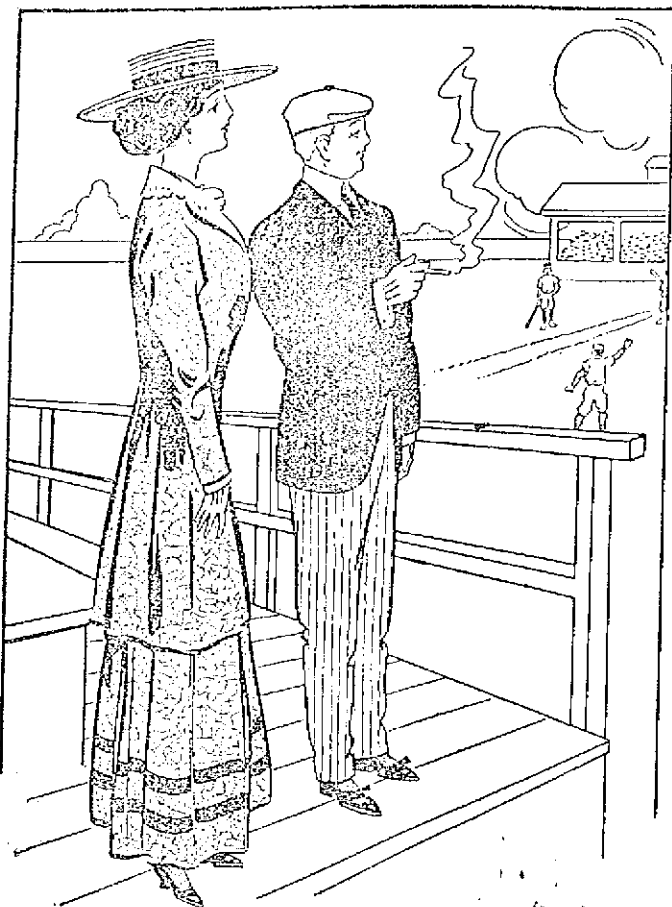

BOTANY.

Miss De Flat—What are those little purple berries?

The Farmer—Them's elderberries.

Miss De Flat—And I suppose these tiny green ones are younger berries.

ON BARGAIN DAYS.

My office boy has a bargain counter grandmother. What do you mean by that?

She always dies on the days that they have double-heads at the baseball grounds.

WILLIE woke up bright and early On the Fourth of July morn. The same thing happens every year As sure as you are born.

HE hit a firecracker, But he didn't know 'twas loaded. And Willie was an awful wreck When the blamed old thing exploded.

THOUGH Willie's had his lesson We very greatly fear That the same old thing will happen In the same old way next year.

STILL ANOTHER.

I WAS trying to do some business in a North Dakota town," said the Chicago drummer, "and I ran up against about the meanest lot of town officials I ever bumped up against. The mayor, his clerk, the recorder, the marshal and an alderman were named Ryder, and they all bothered me at every point. I finally gave up in disgust and said to the landlord of the Inn:

"Nice old town you have here?"

"What's the matter?"

"The Ryder family seems to run it!"

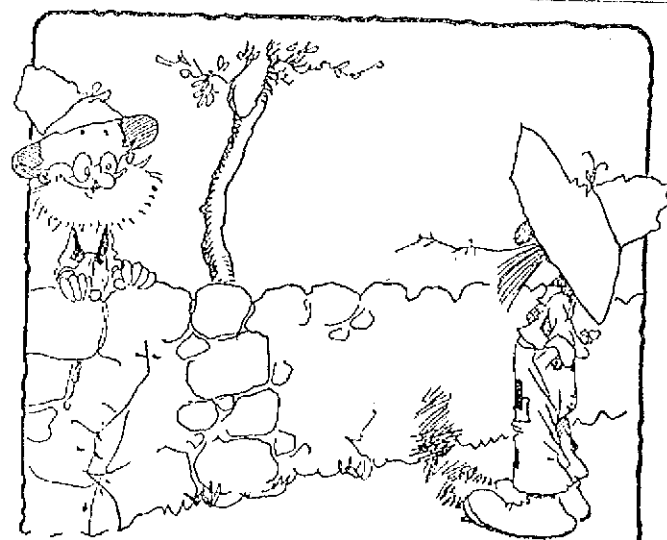

THE SUMMER FOLLY. "The hand that rocks the cradle" Has to hustle so we note, To raise more human victims For "the hand that rocks the boat!"

IN SHANTYTOWN.

Mrs. Boyle—How's yer husband after the accident?

Mrs. Doyle—Faith, sometimes he's better an' sometimes he's worse, but from the way he swears and yells an' takes on when he's better, Ol' think he's better than he's worse.

EXPENSIVE, THOUGH.

"Did you git another gold brick when you was in town?"

"Yep, an' it come in right handy. Wife covered it with carpet an' we use it to prop open the door with."

A CHANGE OF VENUE.

PRISONER at the bar," said His Honor to the red-headed man, "You are charged with upsetting a Dago's peanut stand. What have you to say?"

"I wants a change of venue, sir."

"To Washington."

"But why?"

"I wants to be tried by the Senate."

"That it can't be done."

"Then, Your Honor, please do a poor man a favor."

"What is it?"

"Just imagine that you are the Senate and that I am Larcher, and give me a coat of whitewash!"

His Honor smiled and announced that the prisoner was not only not guilty, but had come out of the crisis with a reputation whiter than snow!

THIS DAY IN HISTORY

MIN OF KENT LEAVE HOME

JUNE 22.—Jack Cade was an Irishman living in London, so it is a chance he didn't like the way things were going. So Jack decided to use some tricks he had learned fighting in the French wars, and started a rebellion in Kent, June 22, 1450. Jack wasn't alone either. As a matter of fact he had nearly 20,000 men at his back when he started for London. He camped at Blackheath where the count sent to him "why the count men of Kent had left their homes?" Cade, who must have been there with the proclamation, answered in a paper entitled "The Complaint of the Commoners of Kent," which was regarded as an improvement upon the Magna Carta. The count sent an answer in the form of an army and Jack hit the pile back to Seven Oaks. When the royal army arrived in his wake Jack turned and cleaned them up. Then he advanced towards London, where the "royal" army refused to fight against their own countrymen. The count then made some concessions and Cade entered London July 2. For a few days all went well and then Jack assumed the role of dictator and the army began to sack the city. It was thought that he had designs on the throne, and he was forced to decamp. He tried to reach the coast but the price set upon his head made it worth while to hunt him, and he was slain near Lewes on July 11.

ROYAL ARCANUM

J. J. Hogan Given Reception by Industry Council

Mr. John J. Hogan of this city, who was elected one of the three supreme trustees of the Supreme Council of the Royal Arcanum at the recent convention of Arcanumites in Minneapolis, was tendered a reception by Industry Council in Odd Fellows temple last night. Present at the meeting were hundreds of members of the order who reside in this city, together with officers of the grand council.

JAMES E. GORMAN, Regent Industry Council.

During the early part of the evening a business meeting was held and eight candidates were initiated, and the full degree was conferred on Mr. Daniel J. Hogan, he being the fourth member of the same family to be made a member of the council.

Orator Michael J. Sullivan presided, and after making an address of welcome short speeches were made by Grand Regent Ernest E. Hobson of Fall River, Grand Vice Regent James F. Wiles of Dorchester, Past Grand Regent George H. Wiley of Maiden, Grand Secretary William L. Kelt of Alston, Supreme Representative Robert Sweet of Melrose, Past Grand Albert W. Davis and Abner C. Walsh of Lowell.

Mr. Hogan was then introduced and he spoke on the occasion. He disclaimed any credit for what had been given him, saying that it was due to Lowell and Massachusetts and that it was only by the self sacrifice of the other delegates from this state that he happened to be the lucky man. He spoke feelingly of the benefits which he had derived from the Arcanum and asked that all unite and make this a banner year for this city and this state and make the regime of the present regent the most successful in years.

After Mr. Hogan had finished he stood at the head of the council hall and the members present filed by to shake hands with him and wish him success in his new position.

Between the speeches there were songs by Eugene McCarthy, John S. Jackson and George P. McCarthy. Mr. Joseph Fredette accompanied. Harold Hennessy told some funny stories, mentioning local men in a way that kept all amused.

After the reception a supper was served in the upper hall and an informal time enjoyed by the 200 or more present. Henry catered.

The committee which worked hard to bring the affair to its successful conclusion was: Orator, Michael J. Sullivan, Richard Mower, John W. Sharkey, James E. Gorman and T. J. Garvey.

A PLEASANT LAWN PARTY

One of the most pleasant and most delightful outings was that of the Varney Whist club, which took place at the Glena camp on the Knights of Columbus grounds yesterday. The members of the Varney Whist club and their friends, comprising about fifty, lunched to this beautiful spot where the afternoon and evening were greatly enjoyed by all present. Many games and amusements were indulged in on the beautiful campus, after which a fine spread was served.

After all had done justice to the good things laid before them, the banquet was preceded and during and vocal and instrumental music were enjoyed as well as whist playing. The fortunate players at whist were lady's prize, Mrs. E. E. Satterly, gent's prize, Mr. E. N. A. Hurlbut. Scores ran pretty high and there were a number of close rivals to the winners.

There were friends from out of town who were guests, among them being Mrs. Jack Harding and daughter of Buffalo, N. Y., sister of Mrs. M. J. Cahill. The whole affair was considered one of the most delightful times that the club has enjoyed since its organization.

The success of the affair was due to the excellent management of Miss Julia Allen and Miss Julia Satterly.

EXCUSE ME!

MAYOR SIGNED ORDER

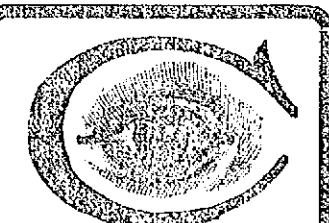

Transferring Hospital Site Back to the Charity Board

Mayor John F. Mehan has signed the joint order re-transferring the site for a contagious hospital in Chelmsford street from the contagious hospital commission to the board of charities.

The land in question is on the grounds of the Chelmsford Street hospital and while a majority of the commission, including Mayor Mehan, favored the site there developed sufficient opposition by persons owning homes near there to influence the city council to rescind its former action whereby it voted the transfer of the land from the board of charities to the contagious hospital commission.

Dr. James J. McCarthy was the only member of the commission who was opposed to the site and while he voted for it in the beginning he afterwards advocated a site on the same premises, but situated near the Chelmsford line and having a greater acreage. Now, so far as the commission is concerned, there is no site in view and had the mayor done other than to sign the order the proposition would remain at a standstill as it was well known that the city council would absolutely refuse to vote money for a contagious hospital to be erected on the site selected near the Chelmsford Street hospital.

"I think that the site selected was a very good one," said Mayor Mehan today, "but I knew that the city council would not vote money for a hospital there and that would mean that the proposition would be at a standstill."

GOING THROUGH THE WALL

KING GEORGE V

Was Crowned King of England in Presence of Many Notables

LONDON, June 22.—King George V, eighth of the house of Hanover, was today consecrated to the service of the British empire and in turn received the public homage of his world-wide subjects.

With his consort, Queen Mary, his majesty was crowned in the abbey of Westminster with all the wealth of religious rites and royal ceremonial prescribed by historic custom.

The picture within the gray-walled fabric was one of the medieval splendor. The coronation services, solemn and imposing, were those handed down from the earlier centuries and the actors in the principal secondary roles of today's great function were garbed in reproductions of the multi-colored, gold-embroidered trappings worn by their ancestors. The latter made up a wonderfully effective setting around the central figures.

Outside, the usually dull streets had been transformed into a mass of color. The king and queen's progress to the abbey and the return to Buckingham palace was an unbroken ovation. The route was hedged with a vast polyglot host with a background of bravely decorated viewing stands and windows and roofs, all of which were crammed to their capacity.

Hundreds of thousands of spectators shouted themselves hoarse at central points like the Mall and the entrance to the Admiralty archway, where the government stands held a score of thousands. Trafalgar square was so densely packed with humanity that it would have been very easy to trample the square walking on the heads of the people. Trafalgar square, Chancery and Constitution hill held their countless hordes.

The tumult of thunderous welcome was almost deafening as the king and queen passed on the outward and homeward journeys, preceded in the first instance and followed on the return by a stately cavalcade of eminent princes, many themselves heirs to thrones, statesmen, diplomats, courtiers, soldiers, sailors and men of all hues, races and creeds from the four quarters of the globe.

The great ceremonial passed off unmarred by any untoward incident. When dawn broke the skies were heavy and showers fell during the progress of the procession of royal guests and the junior members of the royal family to the abbey, but as the king and queen left Buckingham palace to be crowned the heavens smiled and a flood of sunshine brightened the splendid pageant.

It was a proud day for the British empire, but of its millions the one who perhaps had the most reason to be proud was seated by court etiquette the boy of witnessing the triumphal event. At Sandringham palace Queen Mother Alexandra, who forty-six years ago this month gave Great Britain a king, awaited the news that her son had taken his place in the long line of British monarchs.

FATAL ACCIDENTS

The Lowell men were delighted with their trip and the convention was a very interesting and enjoyable one. There were over 500 delegates present and Lowell was better represented than was any city in Massachusetts.

The Lowell men returned home today after an absence of 18 days. The convention was held June 12, 14 and 15 inclusive. They left Galveston Friday night and arrived in New York last night and that was almost a record trip. They sailed by the Mallory line.

In conversation with a reporter for The Sun, Mr. Gaffney said that he enjoyed the trip immensely. "I enjoyed the convention very much," he said. "It was profitable as well as interesting. The convention next year will be held in Salt Lake City. Galveston is a hustling city. They have a commission form of government there and they place no stress on the minutiae. It would seem that harmony reigns supreme and there is no pulling against the tide. The city's business is conducted on a business basis and it is forging right ahead. The things that the people of Galveston have accomplished with-

SEVEN ARRESTED

Raid Was Made on Davidson Street

PATROLMEN LENNON AND MICHAEL O'CONNELL INTERRUPTED A BEERFEAST AT 36 DAVIDSON ST. SHORTLY AFTER 2:30 O'CLOCK THIS MORNING AND AS A RESULT OF THE RAID FIVE MEN AND TWO WOMEN WERE GIVEN A RIDE IN THE LIMOUSINE TO THE POLICE STATION, WHERE THEY WERE BOOKED FOR DRUNKENNESS. SEVERAL OF THE MEMBERS OF THE PARTY ARE WELL KNOWN TO THE POLICE.

The police officers noticed that the can was being rushed into the house very frequently this morning, but as there were no signs of a disturbance when singing and shouting and loud talk floated through the open windows into the street the patrolmen deemed it advisable to make an investigation.

When the officers entered the tenement they found the men and women in different rooms, beer on the table, some glasses filled with beer and the house in disorder.

The patrol was telephoned for and the seven persons hustled in and taken to the station where they gave the names of Josephine Hurd, Mary Riley, Peter Katsan, Peter F. Cheuvette, Christos Melanos, Edward Paquette and Joseph F. Mayo.

SAM WALTER FOSS CLUB

The last meeting of the season of the Sam Walter Foss Literary club was held at the home of Mrs. Albert French, 213 Parkview avenue, with Mrs. French and Mrs. W. A. Wheeler as hostesses. The president, Mrs. French, presided at the business meeting. This was the annual meeting and election of officers took place. The reports of the secretary, treasurer, librarian and other officers showed the club to be on a very prosperous footing with a good balance in the treasury. Mrs. Ella Blake was given the prize offered for the largest amount collected in mite boxes, a beautiful photograph of the president of the club. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: president, Mrs. E. D. Foss; vice president, Mrs. W. B. Hatch; recording secretary, Mrs. H. T. Parnell; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Robert Gilmore; treasurer, Mrs. Fred Galeom; librarian, Mrs. F. K. Marshall. A vote of thanks was extended to the

Her majesty was noticeably nervous as she entered the abbey and the boys from Westminster school, high in this west triforium, filled the abbey with shouts of "Vivat Regina Maria." During the anointing and crowning of the king the queen wept and afterward she often placed her handkerchief to her eyes. Nevertheless she appeared every bit the queen and made a splendid picture as, after her own coronation, with the crown on her head and the sceptre in her hand and her dress of cloth of gold, its train of red velvet stretching twenty feet behind, she knelt before King George's throne and then, rising, took her seat beside, but below, that of her husband. Meanwhile the choir chanted exquisitely.

in the last few years are simply wonderful.

"You know they had a flood there a few years ago. I think it was in 1900. Well, sir, since then they have raised the whole island, for Galveston is on an island, 12 inches, and they have carried away from the city with a concrete wall to prevent a repetition of the flood of 1900. Before the flood there was a natural wall of sand that kept the water back, but the Galvestonians didn't understand that nature had built the wall for a purpose. It looked like an eyecore to them and finally they decided to remove it. The sand was piled away free, and the railroads pushed in spur tracks and cleaned it away in a week or two. Then came the tidal wave. The story is a very simple one. The natural wall had been removed and Galveston was flooded. The concrete wall, however, is most slightly than was the sand bank and it does not dread another tidal wave."

"The wall is of horseshoe shape and cost nearly $2,000,000. It is a wonderful piece of work but it is as nothing compared with the raising of the island. They have a $12 tax rate in Galveston and their bonded debt is less than before the flood. That's what a commission form of government has done for Galveston."

retiring officers, also a gift of cut glass was presented Mrs. Albert French and Mrs. French Cheney as a token of appreciation of the club for their efficiency while in office.

The recipients, although somewhat overcome, thanked the ladies for their gifts. Mrs. French wished to thank the ladies for their support and good feeling during her three years in office as president, the limit of time a member can hold any office.

The new president upon being escorted to the chair read one of Sam Walter Foss' poems suitable to the occasion. Mrs. C. E. Doty was chosen auditor, Mrs. Ezra Pratt and Mrs. H. S. Smith flower committee. Mrs. Chas. B. Rushworth, Mrs. G. F. Adams and Mrs. F. K. Marshall program committee. It was voted to have a picnic each month during the summer for those who do not go out of town. Two resignations were received and three new names were proposed for the waiting list. Mrs. Wheeler had charge of the literary program, which consisted of "Chronicles of the Club, for 1910-11," an original paper read and composed by Mrs. Wheeler; songs, Miss Winifred Phil, Mrs. Frank Hadley, accompanist; and readings by a well known elocutionist. The ladies formed a grand march to the dining-room to the music of the pipe-organ. Mrs. Wheeler called the roll, not by name but by description, each one responding as she recognized her chief characteristic. Mrs. H. McDonald and Mrs. E. B. Chase presided at the table. Misses Eva and Mildred French and Margaret Elliot were the waiters. The next meeting will be announced later.

CHIEF ENGINEER RESIGNS

BOSTON, June 22.—J. Parker Snow, for 22 years chief engineer of the Boston & Maine system, tendered his resignation today to take effect July 1st. A. B. Corbitt, consulting engineer of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, has been appointed his successor.

A telephone alarm at 12:52 o'clock this afternoon summoned a portion of the department to a fire in a dump in Middlesex street on land belonging to the Baron heirs. The blaze was extinguished before any damage was done.

A whist party will be held at the Notre Dame de Lourdes school hall tomorrow evening for the benefit of the parish. This soiree is being organized by the young ladies of the parish and a fine musical and literary program will be given. Ice cream and cake will be served.

THE CHARTER BILL

Will Come Up in the House Next Week

The Lowell charter bill did not come up in the legislature this afternoon but is expected on Monday or Tuesday at the latest.

SPECIAL MEETING

Of the Library Trustees Called

Mayor Meehan has called a special meeting of the library trustees for Monday afternoon to discuss the purchase of the "Rialto," David Neal's famous painting now on exhibition at the public library. The great part of the amount necessary for the purchase of the picture has already been subscribed. "It would be too bad," said Mayor Meehan, "if Lowell should fail to purchase this beautiful picture. I know that the city of Worcester stands ready to buy it, but we have only a little more money to raise and I am sure it will not be difficult to raise it. David is a Lowell boy and was never ashamed, at home or abroad, to say that he was born in Lowell. The 'Rialto' is one of his masterpieces and it should be owned by the city where the great painter first saw the light of day."

To Fight Moths

Members of the Oaklands Improvement association called on Mayor Meehan this forenoon and asked him to use his influence with the superintendent of parks and induce him, if possible, to loan the city moth sprayer to the association. The association members told the mayor that they would buy the poison and take care of the sprayer. "I will do what I can for you," said the mayor, "and I am very sorry that the city council members did not vote for the moth appropriation which I recommended. They displayed very poor judgment and I regret it. It is actually painful to witness the havoc that the moths have wrought."

Mayor's Visitors

Mayor Meehan's visitors today included Grand Regent Ernest E. Hobson of Palmer, Mass. Mr. Hobson is very popular in Royal Arcanum circles. In fact he is popular in all social and political circles. He served in the legislature with Mayor Meehan and their meeting this forenoon was a very pleasant one. The mayor showed his visitor through the hall and they chatted pleasantly over old times.

Orders and Resolutions

The following orders and resolutions were signed by Mayor Meehan today: Joint order transferring custody of land in D street and Harris avenue and Houghton, Parker and Flah streets to the park department.

Joint order repealing the joint order transferring the care, custody and control of land in Chelmsford street from the board of charities to the contagious hospital commission.

Joint resolution for a sidewalk of edgestones and cinders in West Hill-dreth street.

Joint resolution recommending a minimum daily wage of $2 for employees of the park department.

Marriage Intention

The following marriage intention was recorded at the city clerk's office today:

Ellsworth A. Wheeler, 32, farmer, Quebec, Canada, and Lillian O. Forbes, 31, at home, 832 Bridge street.

Robert Watson of the Immigration department at Washington was a caller at Mayor Meehan's office yesterday. Mr. Watson is a Centralville boy and is spending a short vacation at home.

SKETCH OF P. J. RILEY'S STOREHOUSE IN FLAMES

Storehouse in Tanner Street Was Destroyed by Fire

A fire which threatened the manufacturing district in Ayer city broke out in the storehouse of P. J. Riley in Tanner street shortly before six o'clock last night, and despite the energetic efforts of the members of the fire department the building and its contents were destroyed. All that remains of the structure at the present time is the wooden front in Tanner street, the side wall nearest to Howard street and the brick wall in the rear.

Owing to the combustible material in the building the blaze spread rapidly, and when the firemen arrived on the scene the whole building was ablaze. Deputy Chief James F. Norton saw at a glance that it was almost impossible to save the building, but he detailed men to cover all sides of the structure in an attempt to stay the flames and also save the adjoining property.

Despite the hard work of the firemen, however, several buildings in the vicinity caught fire. The fire was spectacular to say the least for when the department arrived on the scene, the flames, wafted by a strong wind, were reaching far into Tanner street. While some of the firemen were fighting the flames on two sides and the rear of the building the majority were in Tanner street directing several streams into the burning building. The heat was so intense that the men had to retreat. Some of the men who stuck to their posts until driven back by the heat are nursing scorched faces today.

The contents of the building consisted of paper stock and rags. Owing to the nature of the contents it was impossible to extinguish the fire in the smoldering rags and paper for several hours and the last detail of the fire department did not leave the premises until early this morning, the recall being sent in shortly before 4 o'clock.

Heard an Explosion

The engineer of the McNabb Bros' laundry in Tanner street was the first person to discover the blaze. He was locking the door to the boiler room when he heard a loud report as though an explosion had occurred, and looking toward the Riley storehouse he saw flames shooting through the roof of the building. He rushed across the street to box 163 and raised in an alarm, and in a few seconds those on No. 9 was on the scene and in rapid succession the other pieces of apparatus that respond to that box arrived.

When the firemen reached the building the flames were shooting out of the windows on all four sides and were beginning to make their way through the roof.

The water seemed to have little effect on the building owing to the headway that the fire had before the apparatus arrived on the scene.

Tower Pulled Down

Shortly after the blaze broke out the roof went in with a crash and one of the walls fell out. A high tower at one end of the building caught fire and the blaze endangered the adjoining property as well as the firemen who were working on the building.

Dep. Chief Norton ordered the firemen to pull the tower down, and after considerable work the high wooden structure was toppled over into the ruins. That the fire did not destroy other buildings in the vicinity was due to the good work of the firemen. The two-story building at the corner of Cambridge and Tanner streets, used as a storehouse by Dickson the tea merchant, caught fire from flying sparks and it was only after considerable trouble that the building was saved. An unoccupied two-story building in Tanner street, which at one time was used as an office by the late Richard Dobbins, also caught fire but was extinguished before much damage was done. The loss is estimated at $8000.

Hard Work for Firemen

After the building was destroyed the contents, which consisted of paper and rags, continued to smolder, and while some of the firemen were dismissed the members of four hose companies and a truck were detailed to remain on the premises and pour water into the smoldering ruins and poke over the contents so that the blaze would not break out again. The men worked hard and at times when it was thought the flames had been extinguished a pile of rubbish would be turned over and smoldering embers would be found beneath. It was not until 3:51 o'clock this morning that the fire was finally extinguished and the recall sounded.

Fire Will Be Investigated

Both the building and contents are covered by insurance through the agency of Fred C. Church.

Deputy Chief Norton is unable to state the cause of the fire and owing to the mystery of its origin he has notified the office of the fire marshal in Boston to send a man to Lowell to look into the affair.

History of Building

The building was two stories high, a portion of the roof being flat while the rest was pitched and at one end was a tower which was 50 feet high. It was formerly used as a boiler works by Richard Dobbins and the tower was what is known as a riveting tower. It was of wooden structure with the exception of the wall in the rear, which was of brick.

Fire in Attic Room

An alarm from box 25 at 8:05 o'clock last night summoned a portion of the fire department to a blaze in a house at 214 Charles street owned by D. M. Kazanjian. The fire started in an attic room which was unoccupied. Fortunately the blaze was discovered in time to prevent its spreading to the street. When the firemen arrived on the scene they succeeded in confining the fire to the room where it started. The blaze was soon extinguished and the damage was slight.

Fred C. Church held the insurance on the furniture in the house.

Matches Caused Fire

At 7:40 o'clock an alarm from box 42 was sounded for a fire in a three-story building at 78 South street owned by a Mr. Dolbe. The fire was caused by the careless use of matches. The fire started in a clothes closet and the only damage done was to the closet and some clothing which was hanging there and some bed clothing.

The blaze was soon extinguished but the firemen in throwing out the debris caused consternation among some of the occupants of the house, who claimed that there was a large sum of money and a gold watch in the clothing which was burned. A search resulted in the finding of the money and the watch which had been hidden in the closet.

DROP IN FLOUR

NUMBER OF BAGS FELL FROM WAGON

A sort of a free show was given before a rather large audience today, when a load of flour was upset in Fletcher street near the Western avenue crossing. The feature of the show, however, was the acrobatic feat performed by a man who was sitting on the rear of the load.

Eugene Morcier, baker in Hall street, recently purchased a carload of flour. The latter was sidetracked in the Western avenue freight yard, and this morning a man named W. Gaudette was hired to transport it from the cars to the shop. The flour came in 25-pound bags, and Mr. Gaudette loaded 33 of the famous bags in his dump cart.

George Burt, a youth about 16 years of age, was seated on the rear end of the load, on top of the flour bags. When the cart which was drawn by a pair of horses arrived at the Fletcher street crossing the clump holding the box in position became loose, and the contents of the wagon, boy and all, were dumped over the railroad crossing.

When the boy felt himself going, he jumped to his feet and turned two pretty somersaults, landing on his back under three or four bags of flour. Several of the bags were torn open, as the street was somewhat wet, the sprinkler having just passed that way. The little boy before he could be extricated from his rather embarrassing position, was glued to the ground. After a few minutes' work, however, the chap was brought to his feet again, but with him there was enough flour for a good mixture.

The driver got busy reloading the cart with the undamaged bags, and the others were left in the street for the birds to feed on.

A large number of people were on the spot and enjoyed the unexpected comedy to its fullest extent.

TEACHERS' SALARY BILL

The New Measure Was Advanced In the House

BOSTON, June 22.—Without a roll call the state senate for the second time, killed the bill for the annexation of Chelsea to Boston yesterday afternoon. The vote stood nine for annexation and 20 against on a rising vote.

There was no debate on the merits of the question. Senator Grainger suggested an amendment for a postal card canvass of the voters of Chelsea, which Senator Brown of Middlesex termed "absurd." The proposed amendment was rejected, 9 to 12, and then the bill was killed as stated. The commutation ticket bill was passed to be engrossed after the adoption of an amendment offered by Senator Blanchard of Middlesex striking out the section that made the bill apply "outside the suburban district." The anti-corrupt practices bill, relative to primaries and elections, went over till Monday.

WHERE INSECTS DWELL
USE CARBONOL

THE presence of ants and roaches is a sign of imperfect cleanliness.

Old houses or badly built ones are very hard to keep clean and accordingly a powerful disinfectant should be used so that if insects do come, they will find the place uncongenial.

Carbonol is better than insecticides and is not poisonous. Simply add a dash of it to the water used in cleaning and proceed in the usual manner. The vapor of Carbonol is obnoxious to insects and they will not stay near it. Carbonol is a grease solvent and can be used to rinse out the kitchen sink and to wash greasy pans and dishes.

Carbonol is wonderful for removing stains of grease and oil. When used on windows the Carbonol solution gives them a brilliant crystal clearness that astounds housekeepers.

We will send you a bottle free to experiment with.

House Advances Teachers' Bill
In the house yesterday afternoon the bill reported on Tuesday from the committee on cities providing for "more adequate salaries" for the teachers of the elementary schools of Boston was ordered to a third reading.

Nothing was apparently heard from the conference between Mayor Fitzgerald, Representative McMorro and ex-Atty. Gen. Herbert Parker. There was no debate on the bill in the house yesterday. After the bill had been ordered to a third reading Representative Montague gave notice that he would later move to substitute his general salary increase bill.

The bill extending fourth-class engineers' licenses to cover motors and engines operated by steam, gas, gasoline and electricity was passed to be engrossed.

An amendment to the vinegar bill was offered by Representative Forristall of Sagus that all containers shall be plainly marked with the name of the owner and the ingredients from which the vinegar is made, in order that the purchaser may know what he is buying.

The amendment was opposed by Representative Brackett of Arlington, who suggested that it was in the interests of certain New York manufacturers. The amendment was defeated on a voice vote and the bill was then passed to be engrossed on a roll-call, 100 to 17.

At the morning session Mr. Saunders of Clinton reported for the committee on judiciary the so-called Saunders-Parks workmen's compensation bill, with a few minor changes. The bill was referred to ways and means.

The committee on federal relations reported a new draft of the Lomax order relative to the treatment of American citizens in Russia.

Ways and means reported ought to pass on the bill to regulate teachers' agencies.

By a vote of 47 to 46 the house, after reconsidering its vote of Tuesday again refused to admit the bill compensating John Henry Chance in the sum of $10,000 for imprisonment on the charge of murder, the governor having pardoned him on the ground that he was innocent.

The next matter taken up was the bill to incorporate the East Boston Municipal railroad company. Various amendments were defeated, including voters of East Boston, and the bill was then ordered to a third reading, 96 to 33.

DRIVER KILLED

Fatal Accident in Milwaukee Race

MILWAUKEE, Wis., June 22.—Walter Donnelly of Cincinnati, driving one of the cars in a 50-mile automobile race at State Fair park, was killed yesterday when his car ran into a fence. His skull was fractured against a post. He died in a hospital. Donnelly was making the turn at the three-quarter post of the 40th mile when a tire came off the rear right wheel, causing the machine to skid. A dozen machines made a great cloud of dust at this point and officials believe that this prevented Donnelly from righting his machine so as to avoid the fence. At the time of the accident, Donnelly's wife was sitting in the grandstand holding her baby and watching the race. She had just told a friend that her husband had never met with an accident in all his automobile racing.

MARYS PRESENT GIFTS TO NAMESAKE QUEEN; GARTER INVESTITURE OF PRINCE OF WALES

LONDON, June 22.—The garter investiture of King Edward VIII. was invested with the Order of the Garter. The ceremony of the king and queen the monies were highly formal and solemn, Prince of Wales, their sixteen-year-old son, who expects some day to become Duke of Connaught being conspicuous figures in the procession. An interesting feature of the coronation period was the presentation to Queen Mary of the insignia of the garter, to the purchase of which thousands of women of the empire named Mary contributed. It consists of four pieces. The garter itself, which her majesty wears on her left arm, is of blue ribbed silk, edged with borders of brilliants, bearing the motto "Honi soit qui mal y pense" in brilliants. The buckle and pin are of larger brilliants. The garter terminates in a floral design, with a single drop brilliant forming a pendant. The badge contains a finely carved sardonyx cameo of St. George and the dragon, around which is the motto of the order in diamonds. This is encircled by a border of larger brilliants. Surmounting the badge is a floral design in larger brilliants terminating in a ring of diamonds, into which fits a boldly designed loop, attaching the blue silk ribbon to the badge itself. The star of eight points is of diamonds. In the center is the plain cross of St. George in specially cut rubies of unusually fine color, encircled by the motto of the order in diamonds in a royal blue enamelled garter. This is again surrounded by a circle of fine diamonds. The shoulder brooch, which consists of a double row of fine brilliants, five in each row, is used to secure the ribbon to the dress. The insignia is contained in a case bearing a gold plate with the following inscription: "Presented to Her Majesty Queen Mary, in Loyal Homage from the Marys of the Empire, as a Coronation Gift, June 22, 1911."

The Y. M. C. I. baseball team will go to Tyngsboro Saturday afternoon, where they will meet the strong team representing that town. The manager of the Y. M. C. I. would like to meet all of the players at the Bowdoin tonight at 7.30.

BOARD OF TRADE

Names Committee for Ensuing Year

The standing officers and chairman of the committee of the board of trade met at the New American hotel last evening and then got down to business. The gentlemen present were most enthusiastic and promised their best efforts to make the coming year a record breaker.

President Harvey B. Greene occupied the chair. There are now 500 members on the roll of the board and it is hoped to increase the number to 1000.

Some of the matters to be considered by the committees are as follows: The work of securing new enterprises, of locating them suitably in the city after securing them, of seeing through to completion the realty building plan, of watching legislation that affects local interests, of studying local transportation facilities and seeking their improvement, of keeping tabs on public utilities in general, of working out problems for the betterment of the postal service, of seeking to beautify the city, of solving the business problems connected with the public health, of securing better streets and roadways, of securing the Merrimack river bank between here and Lawrence for a public reservation and of solving problems of finance and insurance as they come up.

A new committee to consist of one representative of each of the retail trades of the city will be appointed to handle such matters as may directly affect them. This committee will be named at the next meeting of the board of directors.

The committee on public utilities headed by James C. Kelly, is not yet named, but a tentative list of members is held by Mr. Kelly for consideration. FATHER RELEASED

BOY THE MEANS OF REUNITING HIS PARENTS

PLYMOUTH, June 22.—Richard F. Smith, formerly of Brockton, who was recently brought from St. Joseph, Mo., charged with kidnapping his six-year-old son Richard, was placed on probation by Judge Fox in the superior court yesterday after the boy had been the means of reconciling Smith and his wife, who had been separated several years.

The boy did not know his mother when she met the officers who had the father in custody at Worcester. An affecting scene followed, in which Mrs. Smith tried to reconstruct her image in the boy's memory.

While waiting for the case to be called in court yesterday, husband and wife talked together for more than an hour, and the son sitting by their side joined now and then in the conversation. The result was the Smiths decided to re-unite for the sake of their son.

Upon the separation of the couple, the Suffolk probate court gave the boy, who was then about 3 years old, into the custody of his mother, and he was placed in Brockton. Here his father visited him. It was charged, and took him to Missouri.

MERCIER FINED $12

He Was Charged With Exceeding the Speed Limit

Ingram Mercier, aged 17 years, employed as a chauffeur by his brother, Edmund H. Mercier, was arraigned before Judge Hadley in police court this morning on a complaint charging him with operating a motor vehicle at an unreasonable rate of speed in Mammoth road and Varnum avenue on Sunday, June 4. The defendant, who was represented by George L. Ellsworth, an expert on automobile law and counsel for the Automobile Legal Association, entered a plea of not guilty, but after the testimony had been offered, the court found Mercier guilty and ordered him to pay a fine of $12. An appeal was taken and the matter will be tried in the superior court at a later date.

Three witnesses were sworn for the government, while the defendant testified in his own behalf, he being unable to locate the two passengers he had in the machine at the time of the alleged violation of the law.

The first witness called by the government was Patrolman Charles A. Hamilton, who testified that the patrolman a portion of Pawtucketville. He said that on Sunday afternoon, June 4, at about 5:15 o'clock the defendant driving an automobile came along Varnum avenue and turning into Mammoth road endangered the lives of several people who had alighted from a car. Witness thought that the automobile was traveling at between 15 and 20 miles an hour. He said that the defendant did not sound his horn in rounding the corner which he considered a blind corner and he shouted at Mercier to stop, but the latter turned around and instead of stopping increased his speed, the officer said, and crossing over the bridge went up School street. Witness took the number of the machine and after reporting the matter to his superior officer a complaint was made out.

Patrolman Hamilton testified that the machine turned the corner at such speed that the people who had alighted from the electric car had to run to the buildings on the side in order to escape being struck.

On cross-examination Patrolman Hamilton testified that there were five people in the machine but he was not able to recognize the defendant at the time. Witness admitted that he had not brought any complaint about not blowing his horn or failing to stop when ordered to.

Edward McJannet, aged 17 years and residing at 41 Fourth avenue, was the next witness called. He said he had gone to school with the defendant and saw him on the day in question. McJannet said he was standing at the corner of Mammoth road and Varnum avenue talking with Arnold Marshall and Patrolman Hamilton when Mercier rounded the corner. Witness said that the defendant was going "pretty fast" but could not state how many miles an hour he was traveling.

Cross examined witness said that he was not in a position to see whether or not people had jumped out of the way in order to allow the defendant to pass them. He said he saw no traffic in the street at all at the time.

Arnold Marshall, of 558 Varnum avenue, testified that he was standing with McJannet and the patrolman and his testimony was in corroboration of that offered by McJannet.

Ingram Mercier, the defendant, testified that he was 17 years of age and was employed as a chauffeur by his brother. He said he knew nothing about a complaint being made against him until his brother had been brought into court on a similar complaint and discharged. He said that while the patrolman had testified that there were five people in the car which he was driving, there were but three, two young ladies and himself. He did not know who the ladies were for a telephone call had been sent into the office that a car was wanted and the ladies had paid cash, and for that reason he did not inquire their names.

After describing the route he had taken with his passengers he said he came through Varnum avenue and before approaching the corner sounded his horn and reduced his speed to between eight and nine miles an hour. After seeing that the way was clear he increased his speed to between 15 and 20 miles an hour. He said he did not make an abrupt turn and didn't hear the officer call him.

Questioned as to his qualifications as an operator, he said he had been driving for about a year and had covered about 4000 miles, and had never been stopped by an officer.

Cross-examined by Deputy Downey Mr. Mercier said that he saw the officer at the corner but did not see him put his hand up.

Lawyer Ellsworth argued that the government had bitten off more than it could chew, inasmuch as the complaint alleged that the defendant had violated the law on two streets while the testimony offered tended to show that there was an alleged violation on but one street. He quoted the law at considerable length and spoke about the decision which the supreme court had handed down in the case of Commonwealth against Cassidy, in which he was counsel for the defense. He said that the gist of the finding of the supreme court was relative to dangerous operation and not speed.

Deputy Downey argued that public safety was endangered by the defendant and stated that it was not proven that the young man had blown his horn.

The court after considering the testimony found the defendant guilty and ordered him to pay a fine of $12. He appealed and was held under $200 for the superior court.

Case Continued

The case of Eduardo M. de Almeida, charged with the larceny of $679 from Guilherme Vieira, was called for trial this morning, but owing to agreement it was continued till June 28. The bone of contention seems to be to prove whether or not the defendant is a representative of Portugal in this city. It is alleged that he has been posing as vice consul and the counsel for the defense claims that he is in the diplomatic service and that the local court has no jurisdiction. Owing to the point raised the court decided to take the matter under consideration and whether or not the case will be tried here will be given out later. Mr. Francis W. Quappe appeared for the plaintiff and J. Joseph O'Connor for the defendant.

Drunken Offenders

Michael Burke, charged with being drunk, was sentenced to the state farm and Edward Oakley, a parole man, will be returned to that institution. John Leonard was given a suspended sentence of four months in jail and John J. Kelly and Bartholomew J. Sheehan were fined $5 each. There were two first offenders who were fined $2 each.

Assault Case Continued

The case of George Skordas and Simos Dardas, charged with assault and battery on Fred Altar on June 15th and the larceny of 500 cucumbers from the Trull Bros. in North Tewksbury, was continued until June 29, each defendant being held under $1000 bonds.

Assault Charged

Henry Defoe and Royal Dion, two Chelmsford boys, got into a fist encounter Tuesday in a pool room in that town, and the affair ended with the arrest of Defoe who was charged with assault and battery on his former chum.

According to Defoe's testimony, Dion has been telling stories about him to several members of the fair sex of the town, and just for that, he (Defoe) met Dion in a pool room and struck him on the nose with his fist two or three times.

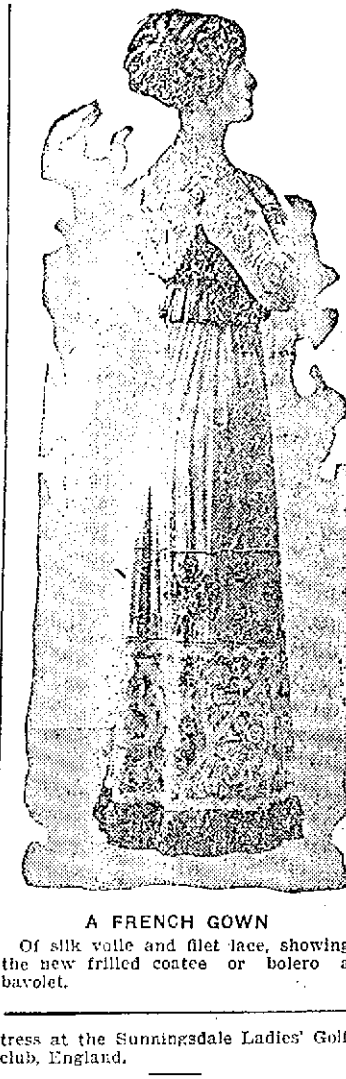

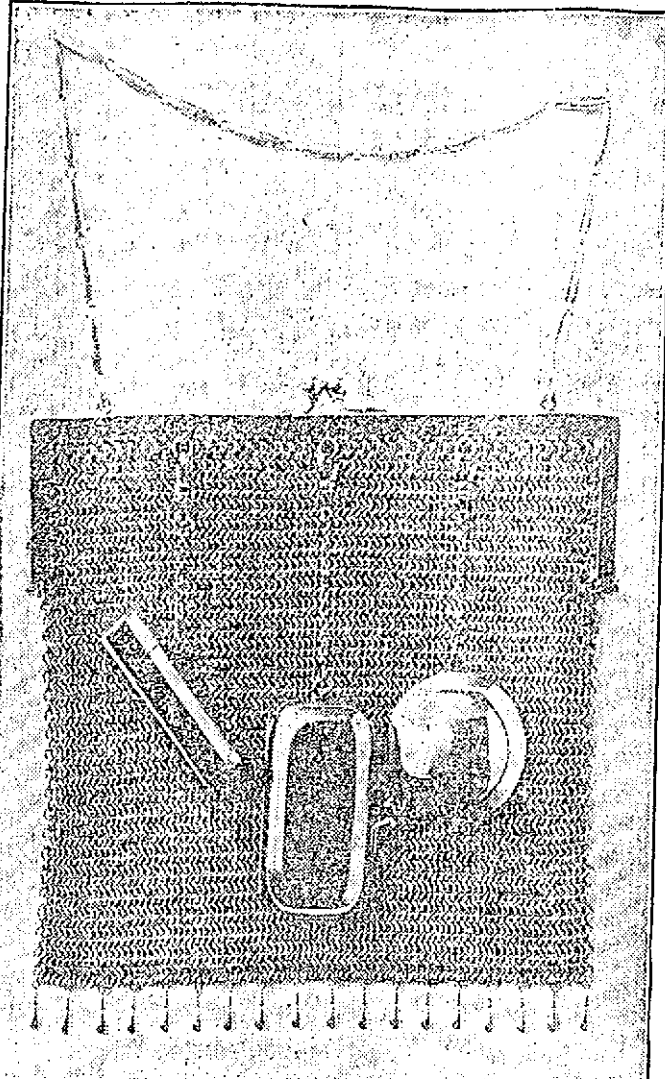

After hearing the testimony the court found the defendant guilty and continued the case till tomorrow for sentence. Defoe being held in the sum of $1.

Eucilde Vallendar, who was charged with having in his possession milk belonging to the building owned by Squires & Hughes and on the contents in the same building which belongs to Melvin & Bancroft Co.

HOUSE PAINTERS

WOMEN OF FORT WORTH TO ENTER THE BUSINESS

The women of Fort Worth, Texas, have decided to break into another business—house painting. The twenty-five women who have adopted this line are the first of their sex to enter the trade.

The women are employed by Vance C. Baldwin, a contracting painter, who has difficulty with union painters. They are being paid $1.75 a day as apprentices and are promised a substantial raise.

When interviewed one of these new painters said: "We like it ever so much, and I'll bet we will make better painters than men. We will exercise more care and won't leave a house until it is as pretty as can be."

"Why did we quit as clerks and become painters? That's easy. Because it pays better, and we are tired of being cooped up in hot stores all day," she continued. "We are going to keep right on painting. We just won't quit, no matter what the unions do."

Miss Leonora O'Reilly, vice president of the Woman's Trade Union league, says that the fundamental purpose of the league, which was recently incorporated, is the organization of women into trade unions.

"The new, or rather, the enlarged, work of the league means more trained workers, more organizers. We have one organizer coming from Italy to work among the Italian girls here."

"The organization of the foreigners is very important; otherwise they undermine the trades by working for lower wages. Knowing nothing of the American standard or the cost of living, they agree to work for less money than American girls are getting. That was at the bottom of the shirt waist strike, the attempted substitution of seven dollars a week foreign girls for twelve dollar a week Americans."

"It is my belief that the greatness of man is mainly in the past; the future is in the hands of woman. Men may stand around for a few centuries saying 'We are the mighty lords of creation,' but in the meantime woman, who is not born with a swollen head, will be struggling, working and in the end triumphing. And the woman of the future must be a worker just as man is now a worker."

Miss Lily Freemantle is the first professional woman golfer in England. She is the daughter of the professional golfer of the Costelloe Golf club, Hyren. She has been appointed instructor

Miss Whitney became enrolled for suffrage when Mrs. Mackay organized the Equal Franchise society, and it was under that banner that Miss Whitney marched in the recent suffrage parade. She marched without a whit of self consciousness, apparently as happy to step out shoulder to shoulder with her professional and industrial sisters as though the ballot represented to the daughter of millions the same concrete symbol of fair play in the world's work.

THE BATTLE IS ON

Big Fight Over Wool Revision and Farmers' Free Lists

WASHINGTON, June 22.—An already badly tangled situation in the senate was still further complicated today when the senate finance committee decided to throw the wool revision and so-called farmers' free lists, recently passed by the democratic house of representatives, into the open senate at once, to take their chances along with Canadian reciprocity.

Both measures, however, received formal adverse committee reports. The committee refused to take responsibility for reporting in detail on these measures at any given time and decided to cast the burden of senate legislation on the coalition of the democratic and insurgent republicans suddenly brought about last night when the wool bill came from the house.

The finance committee had been instructed today that Senator Clapp proposed to offer a resolution of instruction as to the free list bill, but the committee forestalled such action.

The effect on reciprocity by today's action is profound. Some opponents of the agreement expressed the hope that it will kill the bill. Friends of the measure believe it will mean a long delay. Some of the insurgents declared reciprocity ultimately would pass but in amended form. There seems little doubt that the real fight will come on efforts to amend the bill.

Other predictions were made today that the senate soon would be plunged into what might prove to be a general tariff revision fight.

The finance committee called in special session today following last night's sensational developments first considered the woolen bill.

Senator Kern, democrat, moved that limited hearings be conducted and that Chairman Penrose telegraph woolen manufacturing associations and the National Sheepgrowers association to appear and conclude their testimony by July 10. Senator Heyburn moved to amend this motion so as to provide for an immediate adverse report.

The republican members took the position that it would be unjust and inequitable to hear only a few men. They said that many of the sheepmen are now with their flocks transferring them to summer ranges after shearing and lambing, and that it would be impossible for them to come at this time. It was stated that many independent manufacturers had required hearings and that under the Kern motion they would be excluded.

The republicans said they would be compelled to tell the great interests they could not be heard. They declared the only fair thing would be to report the wool bill adversely at once. This motion was adopted by a vote of 9 to 4. All the republican members voted for the adverse report.

The so-called farmers' free list bill was then called up by Senator Bailey, who desired immediate action. He first moved to strike out the provisions providing for the free entry of meat products, buckwheat flour, cornmeal, wheat flour, rye flour and other grain products, such as oatmeal and cereal foods and biscuits, bread wafers and similar articles not sweetened.

Senator McCumber then moved to report the free list bill without recommendation, which was lost, 5 to 9. Senator Bailey moved to report the bill favorably, which was lost by 5 to 9, the affirmative vote being: La Follette, Bailey, Simmons, Williams and Kern.

On motion of Senator Gallinger the bill was ordered to be reported adversely by the vote of 8 to 5. The negative vote was the same as the affirmative vote on the preceding motion by Senator Bailey.

The adverse reports on the two bills were made to the senate as soon as it convened. The coalition senators were prepared and when Senator Penrose moved that consideration be indefinitely postponed they demanded that the bills go to the senate calendar.

Senators Martin and Culberson were on their feet as soon as the adverse report was made on the wool bill asking that the resolution take its regular place on the calendar. Senator Nelson made the same demand for the adversely reported free list bill.

Senator Gore, whose motion yesterday led the senate to instruct the finance committee to report the wool bill back before July 10, congratulated the finance committee on its facility in doing business.

"It has been demonstrated that the republicans no longer are in control to the senate and responsibility has been taken from them," said Senator Penrose today.

Senator Lodge said the senate coalition and the threats of the insurgents to force a general tariff fight before the senate prior to the end of the agreement meant the end of the agreement. "For the time being at least," Senator Gallinger also insisted that the chances for reciprocity now seem slim. His opposition to the bill, however, has been freely expressed.

Senator Lodge said that he was glad that the responsibility was to be placed where it belonged.

"I shall take a great deal of pleasure," he added, "in sitting back and watching the senate struggle with a tariff bill that has not been passed upon by the finance committee. It will take a long while to get through a situation like this but we can wait. All guesses as to a possible date of adjournment, it is now admitted, are worse than useless."

The insurgents are ready for the fight," said Senator Bristow, who stood outside of the finance committee room while the committee was in session. "We are ready with revision bills. Senator La Follette has woolens and cotton, Senator Kern has steel, and I am ready with sugar and lead. These bills take duties which admittedly are excessive off trust-controlled products. Now the question is, 'What will the president do?' If he is wise he will accept our bills as an amendment to the reciprocity measure."

Regardless of the action taken by the finance committee the real struggle will be over amending the reciprocity measure and control is conceded to be in the hands of the democrats. The question with them is whether the adoption of amendments which will revise other schedules will draw a veto by President Taft of the reciprocity bill. Democrats in the senate have taken the position that they should not vote for amendments that would kill the reciprocity measure.

Explaining in the senate the sudden action on the two bills, Chairman Penrose declared that the committee did not believe that proper hearings could be held within the twenty days allowed by the Gore resolution. For that reason, he said, the committee had determined to report both bills at once with the recommendation that they do not pass.

"There is no explanation or report with the bills," observed Senator Cummins.

"Only the adverse recommendation of the committee," said Chairman Penrose. "Members of the committee have the privilege of filing independent views, but I have not been advised that any will be filed."

Senator Gore declared that the democrats would take no step delaying the passage of the reciprocity bill.

THE ARGUMENTS MADE

In the So-Called Lawrence Graft Cases

SALEM, June 22.—Final arguments in the so-called Lawrence graft case were made in the superior court here today. Attorney W. J. Bradley devoted his argument in defence of Michael Flynn, clerk in the Lawrence street department and one of the defendants, principally to an exhortation of Fred L. Snow, the Westford paving stone contractor, who was placed on trial with the other men, but who turned state's evidence.

As soon as Mr. Bradley had concluded, court adjourned for luncheon. At the afternoon session John H. Vahes, counsel for two other defendants, Patrick Flynn, street commissioner of Lawrence, and Philip Holland, a contractor, began his argument. It was expected that District Attorney Atwill would complete the government's summing up before adjournment and that Judge Bell would charge the jury tomorrow.

THREE PITCHERS THE LYNN TEAM IN CLOSE GAME

Wakefield Boys Are Objects to Decision of New Bedford Took Some Twirlers League Officers Victory From Lowell

Another Wakefield boy has entered the big league ranks in Frank A. Harrington, star pitcher on the Boston college team. Harrington leaves today for Pittsburg. He has been sought by a number of big league scouts for some time.

Harrington has just been elected captain of the Boston college nine for next season. He has just completed his junior year at the college, where he stood high in his classes and won honors. Besides being a popular athlete, he has also won distinction for the college in debating circles, being a speaker on the Fulton prize debate and a member of the debating team which defeated Georgetown university at Washington in April.

Before going to Boston college Harrington played with Holy Cross college of Worcester, making the team in his freshman year and alternating in the box and in the outfield. With Boston college he has lost but two games. In two years, both being by one run. He has speed, good control and exceptional coolness and his friends are confident he will make good in his major league debut.

Besides his college career Harrington has played considerable semi-professional baseball in and around Boston and in Canada. Last summer he pitched for the St. John, N. B., team and while there attracted the attention of several major league scouts by his record, with the result that he finally was persuaded to sign with Pittsburg. He has also played with Hopkinton and other teams in the Mill league.

Harrington is the third of his family to enter the professional baseball ranks, all three brothers being pitchers. His older brother, Joe, recently signed a contract with the Detroit team and is now at Newcastle, Pa. He was formerly pitcher and captain of the university of Rochester team. Bill, a younger brother, though only 18 years old, signed this spring with the Lynn team, and is now one of the leading pitchers in the New England league. All three brothers are popular in Wakefield, where they played on the high school and town teams.

WANTED

Everybody to know that ST. THOMAS' SALVE is the only known remedy for Piles, old sores, and skin diseases, 35c. All leading druggists.

The following letter in relation to the Lynn-Lowell forfeited game of May 30 tells its own story:

"By the latest order of President Murnane of the New England league, game won by Lynn from Lowell Memorial day morning, May 30, is to be played over on the first visit of Lynn to Lowell.

"This arbitrary and unjust ruling is contested by the management of the Lynn team because it strikes at the vital principle of a game in which fairness is the predominating characteristic—the taking away of the winning team's rights to a fairly won game.

"The facts are these: By an agreement between the umpire, Thomas Fleming, Manager Gray of the Lowell team, and Capt. McGovern of the Lynn team, the game was to be called at 12 o'clock, providing the teams had played the legal number of innings to constitute a game, and the innings were even. These requirements were complied with, and the score was 5 to 5 in favor of Lynn. Umpire Fleming awarded the game to Lynn. The agreement was made in order that the teams might reach Lynn in time to play the afternoon game.

"The evidence in support of this statement of facts is overwhelming. The umpire reported to Secretary Jacob C. Morse of the league, that the game was won by Lynn, and Mr. Morse authorized the Associated Press to correct the standing of the clubs, giving Lynn one more game won, and the Lowell team one more game lost, which had not been done because of erroneous statements sent out from Lowell.

"Under date of June 5, President Murnane promulgated a decision, based on evidence, confirming that of Secretary Morse, to the effect that the game should stand as played, and be awarded to the Lynn club, 5 to 5, the score at the end of seven completed innings.

"Under date of June 12, President Murnane promulgated a new decision (reversing his previous ruling), announcing that the game had been thrown out, and should be played over on the next visit of Lynn to Lowell.

"The reason for this sudden shift of position is not clear. Manager Gray denies that he entered into an agreement to call the game at 12 o'clock. Surely President Murnane would not reverse his decision on the unsupported statement of a contending manager, for justice would be too outraged in not giving a hearing to both sides before taking such an important step. No such hearing was given. President Murnane offers as an explanation that agreements to shorten games are untenable, but here again he is at fault: for the practice of the New England league, and all minor leagues, authorizes such agreements. Precedents in abundance are available.

The Lowell manager claims that the umpire forfeited the game, Lowell, 9 to 0, because Lynn refused to continue. Lynn did not refuse to continue as the evidence proves, but for the purpose of the argument, to give Mr. Murnane all the latitude he wants, grant that the umpire did forfeit the game, then there is no reason for the extraordinary decision to replay the game, for it belonged to Lowell on that hypothesis. But the umpire did not forfeit the game, as his official report proves.

The real motive for this back action decision will sooner or later be made clear, as it is the intention of the Lynn management to push the matter to a conclusion. We cannot but feel that this decision is adverse to the best interests of the game.

We present these facts that the base ball public may understand why we shall appeal first to the New England league directors, and second, if necessary, to the national board of arbitration.

We ask the league directors for nothing more than our rights, and those we are determined to have, especially when they run parallel to the best traditions of the great sport of the American people. Of what value is it to fairly win games and then have them taken away by the stroke of a pen? No jury of fans would render such a verdict on the ground facts. The integrity of the New England league is threatened by such arbitrary actions, hostile alike to the spirit of the game and the earnest athletes who strive for victory. We ask that the widest publicity be given to our indelible purpose to contest the decision to the last resort, in the interests of honorable sport.

TONIGHT

NEW BEDFORD, June 22.—New Bedford defeated the league leaders, 3 to 2 yesterday. Pruitt kept his hits well scattered and was strong in tight places. The champions had good chances to score in the sixth and seventh, but clever pitching by Warwick held them useless. The fielding of Rising was a feature. The score:

WASHINGTON INFELDER HAS PROVED TO BE A "COMEBACK"

WASHINGTON, June 22.—Talking about "comebacks," Herman Schaefer, the Washingtons' veteran infielder, furnishes an interesting illustration. Until he was placed on first base "Germany" did not look like he had much longer to stay in fast company, but ever since then he has played as good a game of ball as has been seen here in many a day. The most surprising feat of Schaefer's work is his hitting and his fast work on the bases. He is one of the fastest men on the team and uses rare judgment. With Schaefer going as he is there is no occasion for the club to make any special effort to find a first baseman. Schaefer is filling the bill most satisfactorily, and it would be no easy matter to find a player who could replace him.

ceived a tempting offer from Terra Haute, Spring did not accompany the team on its southern trip, but will remain a member of the Lowell team until he gets a position elsewhere.

The Palmers and South Ends, the rival aspirants for the championship of the South common, will play a blood game at the common on Saturday afternoon for a purse of $50.

Y. M. C. A. BASEBALL BANQUET
Members of the Grammar School Athletic association who wish to attend the baseball banquet at the Y. M. C. A. next Monday night should get their tickets from Mr. Williams at the Y. M. C. A. at once.

CHILD ESCAPED

By Displaying Great Presence of Mind

SWAMPSCOTT, June 22.—Displaying rare presence of mind for a child of such tender years, little Ethel Carroll, the 5-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Carroll of Swampscott, yesterday escaped being killed by a train on the Marblehead branch of the B. & M. R. R. by grasping two wires and hanging over the bridge which crosses the state highway 40 feet in the air.

Ethel Carroll and her brother, a little more than two years her senior, had climbed the high embankment, upon which is located the railroad, and while at play on the bridge the train from Marblehead, due in Lynn shortly after 1, rounded a curve.

The little boy shouted to his sister, upon which he located the railroad, and while at play on the bridge the train from Marblehead, due in Lynn shortly after 1, rounded a curve.

tions for leave to amend his answers to interrogatories in that suit.

In the principal motion referred to he says: "And Brig. Gen. Dewey for himself further suggests that money talks in the United States, and that the gold eagles of the United States talk in part as follows: 'E Pluribus Unum—In God We Trust—Liberty—United States of America—Ten dollars'—and that said money talk being interpreted means that the republican form of government is established for each and all of the states of America is established by the rejection of a democratic form of government and the acknowledgment of comparative distrust in all human agencies."

He asserts that the bill of reasons filed by Travel Major Sherman (Judge Sherman) in overruling his motion for a new trial tends to deny "the appropriate and unalienable and essential Sherris," etc., "to each and every republican juror," and to his republican best girl. "This last phrase doubtless refers to the constitutional guarantee to every man and woman."

CURED BABY'S ECZEMA

Mothers who have watched their babies suffering from eczema will be delighted to know that Comfort Powder which is recommended by so many physicians and nurses has cured many cases of eczema. It stops the itching right away and lets the little one sleep, yet is entirely harmless. All skin irritations, mild rashes and chafings disappear when Comfort Powder is used. Dr. A. B. Chapin, Aurora, N. C., says: "It cured a child of a very bad case of eczema on the face." E. S. Sykes' name is on the genuine.

Anty Drudge Gives Advice to the Salesman.

Salesman—"I have a patent washboiler which burns denatured alcohol at much less cost than coal or wood."
Anty Drudge—"You'd better go into some other business, young man, if you want to make a living. Since I've been telling the women how to wash clothes with Fels-Naptha in cool or lukewarm water, without boiling, all kinds of washboilers have gone out of style. Good day."

Fels-Naptha will take grease out of clothes in cool or lukewarm water.

It loosens all kinds of grease quick as a wink, and takes out every trace of the spot.

That's why butchers', and painters', and machinists' clothing can be washed better with Fels-Naptha than any other way.

It's easier, too; in summer or winter, requires no boiling, hot water nor hard rubbing, and makes a better job of it.

Because Fels-Naptha dissolves grease almost instantly, women who have tried it prefer Fels-Naptha to any other soap for washing dishes.

There is no necessity for putting the hands in hot water.

Puts a fine polish on glass and china.

It is likewise superior in cleaning coats, or rugs, or curtains, or anything else that has become spotted or soiled.

In fact, you will find that anything cleanable can be cleaned quicker and better and easier with Fels-Naptha.

And for laundry purposes, Fels-Naptha is a revelation to women who have always washed in the old-fashioned, washboiler-and-hard-rubbing way.

Directions for all purposes are printed on the back of the red and green wrapper.

IN CENTRALVILLE

Fireworks Display to be Held

A large and enthusiastic meeting of the business men and residents of West Centralville was held last night in the quarters of Hose 12 in West Sixth street, the purpose of which was to discuss the idea of having fireworks in that district on the evening of July 4th.

CAPT. HERBERT A. MERRILL, Centralville Fire House.

for of the movement. He has seen personally a large number of business men and residents of the West Centralville district and after explaining his "scheme," as he called it, a meeting was called for last night.

About forty men were present, and the captain called to order at 8 o'clock. After a few appropriate remarks, in which the captain explained the purpose of the meeting, he called upon the assembly to elect a chairman and a committee to go along with the work.

Councilman Charles A. Delaronde was chosen chairman, and the committee is composed of the following: Thomas F. Garvey, treasurer; E. J. Larchelle, secretary; James A. Burns, Eugene Vincent.

Subscriptions will be taken up from house to house by the members of the committee and five other men who were chosen by the latter to act as aids. These men are: Narcisse Gadois, Ernest Madio, Charles McKenzie, Edouard Morin and Emile Fontaine.

The territory of West Centralville has been divided by districts, and the following men will solicit in their respective districts as follows: Messrs. Delaronde and Gadois, from Cumberland road to Bridge street, between Exeter and Bennett streets; Messrs. Burns and McKenzie, the northerly side of Lakeview avenue from Aiken to West streets; Messrs. Vincent and Morin, Exeter street and all streets westerly; Messrs. Garvey and Madio, from Cumberland road to Lakeview avenue, between Bennett and Exeter streets; Messrs. Larchelle and Fontaine, the southerly side of Lakeview avenue, from Aiken street to the city limit.

Each solicitor will be supplied with a credential signed by all members of the committee, and the people are requested not to give to any other.

The fireworks will be held on the vacant lot next to the fire station in West Sixth street, opposite St. Louis church.

Another meeting will be held Thursday evening, June 29, to which all the citizens of West Centralville are invited. The funds will be collected in West Centralville, for this will be a sort of family affair and just for the residents of that district.

A Few Facts About LIVER TROUBLE.

A dull, sluggish liver always brings a dull, sluggish feeling to the entire body. When the liver works properly the blood courses through the body in a bright red stream. When the liver is inactive the blood becomes dull and muddy, and it is full of poisonous matter. A great many people try to get a fine, clear, pink and white complexion by rubbing things on their faces. They might rub a lifetime and the same yellow complexion would remain—for the liver causes it. Only bright, red blood brings fine complexions. Blood loaded with impurities from the liver sends the impurities out through the pores of the skin and turns the skin a brownish yellow.

To get rid of the dull, heavy feeling and muddy, yellow complexion get the liver to working again. Two big bottles of BLOODINE will do it more than out of ten. If you are troubled with Constipation and Straining use BLOODINE LIVER PILLS with the BLOODINE.

WAKE UP!

JUST to keep in cold storage for the summer, so as to be ready and fit to brave the winter breezes of the antarctic as Harry Whitney's pilot in February, 1912, Captain Bob Bartlett (no one could ever call him Robert after once grasping his hand) has taken a small party of sportsmen up to the northern regions until September.

Then with the ironclad ship that Harry Whitney has purchased, but has not yet named, they will sail away down the coast of both Americas until they come to Punta Arenas, in Chile, where they will re-enforce their supplies, establish a home base and sail for Coats Land some time in February, before navigation is closed.

They will be in a merry race for the honor of planting the stars and stripes on the south pole, to duplicate the flag Peary left at the north pole. The English expedition under Captain Scott has already left New Zealand.

Captain Robert Falcon Scott left Cardiff on the 15th of June, 1910, on a voyage of discovery having as its object the south pole. His ship, the Terra Nova, is an old Dundee whaler, built a quarter of a century ago, but thoroughly refitted and remodeled for its antarctic journey. One of those who wished success to Scott when he left England was Bob Bartlett, then in Europe with Peary.

Scott's route is from New Zealand southward. His southern base will be Macmurdo sound, almost directly opposite Coats Land, where Whitney and Bartlett expect to start their "dash" to the pole. The Scott expedition proposed to reach Macmurdo sound by January, 1911, when twenty-two men were to be landed to form a western party, with a hut, provisions and equipment, and establish a winter station. Later they will go south to lay depots. By the end of February the western party will have established a system of depots south of the ice barrier.

With Scott are a number of other British officers and scientists. The expedition left Cardiff with provisions enough for three years.

Of several wealthy clubmen who announced their intention of going north with Peary on his recent successful expedition to the north pole Whitney alone "made good." Finally opposition and other considerations deterred the others. They never started.

But when the Roosevelt sailed from New Bedford July 9, 1903, Harry Whitney was on board.

He afterward separated from Peary, Bartlett and the rest and busied himself with hunting big game in Ellesmere Land. It was then he encountered Dr. Cook, an encounter that brought him much unwelcome fame on his return to civilization.

Whitney is tall, spare and wiry. He is about thirty-eight years old. Like himself, his father, the late Stephen Whitney, was a lover of sport in many forms. Although it has been often stated that the family is related to Bill Whitney, inventor of the cotton gin, this is not the case.

Once he bought a ranch in Arizona and while there had one of the narrowest escapes from death of his whole eventful career. He was riding on a mustang 100 miles from Tucson, the nearest town, when an insect got into his ear and began to sting him, causing the most excruciating pain. He did all he could to dislodge the insect, but in vain. Realizing that his position was desperate, he put spurs to his horse and went galloping at top speed over the 100 miles between him and human aid at Tucson. When he at last reached there he was nearly raving mad from the pain. People thought him a lunatic.

What would have happened to him is a problem if an Elkar pin which he wore had not aroused the interest of some members of that order who encountered him. They had him taken to a hospital, where doctors located the trouble and performed an operation on his ear. If he had not made such speed to Tucson and reached

After years of voyaging over the ocean he obtained his captain's certificate. He then took his first plunge into arctic exploration, going north with Peary in 1898 as first mate with his uncle, Captain Samuel Bartlett. After that he made two trips under another uncle, Captain John Bartlett, to Hudson bay.

In 1905 Captain Bob commanded the Roosevelt, Peary's ship. He was the youngest skipper who ever commanded on a polar expedition. After the Roosevelt returned to New York he superintended the rebuilding of the vessel and was again in command of her when she started in 1908 on the expedition in search of the north pole that was destined to be successful.

Bartlett took the Roosevelt to Cape Sheridan, farther north than any vessel ever went under steam. Before there before being driven quite out of his senses by the pain he would have perished in the desert wastes about that town.

Whitney has been four times to the arctic—in 1901 and 1902, with Peary in 1903 and with Paul Riney and Bob Bartlett last summer. His 1902 expedition was a sealing voyage. He has written a book and several magazine articles about his adventures. But, unlike other explorers, he has not become a lecturer. That is by no means in the line of "the silent sportsman."

Captain Bob comes of a family of seafarers. His father, Captain William Bartlett, was a skipper. Bob was born in Brigus, N. F., Aug. 13, 1875. After going through public schools there he went to Bishop Field college at St. John's, N. F. His parents wanted him to go into business, but the smell of the salt was in his nostrils. Shipping as an ordinary seaman before the mast, he went to Brazil while still a boy.

doing that he made Peary agree to let him participate in the overland dash for the pole instead of sticking by his ship. Bob commanded one of the advance sledge parties and got to within five days' march of the pole.

A German expedition already fitted out purposes to make for the very point which Captain Bartlett has in view, but cannot reach it until later.

In addition to Captain Scott's expedition, which is now on its way, and the German one, there is also a Japanese expedition on the way to the south pole. The Japanese are not very well financed and have a small ship, only 150 tons.

With a Norwegian expedition also projected, there will altogether be five competitors in the race for the south pole.

As Captain Bob became an American citizen in April, England has put in no claim if he is the lucky first one at the southern pole of that great old spinning top, the earth.

BANK PRESIDENT A SUICIDE

PHILLIPS, Me., June 22.—The body of George French, president of the Phillips Savings bank, was found hanging today in his stable. It is believed that Mr. French committed suicide while temporarily unbalanced over minor troubles. He attended to his usual duties about his home this morning, and the discovery of his suicide came as a great shock to his family.

The banker, who was 60 years old, had for many years been one of the leading citizens and prominent men of this section, being an extensive dealer in cattle and lumber, and was looked upon as one of the wealthiest men in this city. He was a leader in the Phillips Congregational church. He is survived by a widow and a daughter, Miss Lucille French, an accomplished musician.

MAN STRUCK BY TRAIN

PAWTUCKET, R. I., June 22.—The body of Edward Gough, 22 years old, was found beside the tracks of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, near the Pleasantview station, today. It is believed that the man was struck by a train some time during the night or early morning.

LIVELY BOXING

On Card at L. S. and A.
Meeting Tonight

Tonight's meeting of the Lowell Social and Athletic club will be one of the most important since the organization of the club on account of the fame in the athletic world of the leading contestants on the program, Johnnie Glover of South Boston and Young McDougough, the pride of Manchester's sporting fraternity. Both men are hardy athletes and clever boxers and they are on even terms as regards to weight and ring experience. Their best should be one of the best ever witnessed in Lowell. Both men have reported to the club in good shape.

The semi-final will be worth going to witness, for it brings together two husky representatives of the old and new Acre district, Joe Moriarty, the "White Man's Hope," and John Anagnostos, the clever Greek boxer who has made a great hit both on his opponents and with the members of the club in recent bouts. Both boys have done considerable training for their match, which will be of eight rounds, and great things are expected of them. There will be a good preliminary. The bouts will start at 8:15 and the meeting will be for members exclusively.

AT NORTH BILLERICA TODAY'S STOCK MARKET

Business at Both Mills in the Town Unusually Quiet

The few storekeepers of North Billerica are counting their depleted supplies and are looking forward anxiously to the coming of the Boston & Maine repair shops to the village, for the stagnation in woolen manufacturing is showing serious effects upon the village and enterprising little village on the Concord. "My receipts," said one of the village storekeepers to a reporter of The Sun, "have dropped almost to the point of a year ago." The business at the postoffice has dropped and it is all due to the fact that business is slack at the Talbot and Faulkner mills which furnish a livelihood for the residents of the village. One of the best evidences of this slackness is the number of persons seen on the village streets during the morning hours. Ordinarily, the visitor to North Billerica during working hours finds only a market man and Chief of Police Martin Conway about town, but this morning the reporter at first thought that some local holiday was being observed on account of the comparatively large number of people about the village. Many of the mill operators who have been thrown out of employment have packed up and moved to busier scenes, leaving empty tenements behind them. But the present period of slackness in all probability will not last long, and North Billerica has ever been particularly fortunate as regards work in the mills, not having experienced any long shutdowns that have been reported from other textile places.

Hobos Flocking In
Since it got abroad that the Boston & Maine is about to build a gigantic plant in North Billerica, all roads of the original "hobo," the hobo, have led to Lowell and Constable Conway is of the opinion that nearly 500 have blown into town in a steady stream and have blown out again upon learning that the company has not begun its operation. The hobos claim to be looking for temporary work shovelling or picking around the place where they will have their meals served to them on the job and where they will sleep in shacks furnished by the company for its laborers. Upon learning that there is nothing doing as yet all invariably have taken to the road again. A few who liked the appearance of the place and who threaten to make an extended visit were warned by Constables Conway and Livingston that Billerica has a pronounced grouch against tramps, whereupon they too have flown. It was expected that 1500 hobos would be on the site by June 15th, but as yet they have not put in an appearance. The tenants in the houses were ordered to vacate by June 10, but some of them are still there. The plan of the railroad is to use the houses on the site as offices for the engineers and surveyors and driving stakes, marking off the place, and stakes have been driven for a spur track which will be utilized while the buildings are in process of construction.

DROWNED HERSELF

Maude E. Eastman Crossed in Love, Suicides in Canal

Maude E. Eastman, aged 23 years, and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin S. Eastman of 18 May street, despondent because her parents objected to her keeping company with a young man whose religion was different from hers, ended her life last night by jumping into the canal near the Fawcett bridge.

Clothing Found on Bank

Two young men were passing along the canal walk shortly before 1 o'clock last night when they found the coat, hat and handbag. They gathered about the articles together and were about to take them to the police station when they saw Wagon Officer John Hickson on his way to the police station and turned them over to him. The articles were of little interest except so far as they might cast light on the identity of the owner. The bag was of black velvet and contained a small file, handkerchief, a pocketbook, a small comb, a bottle of toothpaste, several postcards and a letter.

It was the letter which resulted in the police learning the identity of the young woman. It was written on both sides of a sheet of paper and that the premeditated suicide was evident. For all of the letter was written with a pen with the exception of a line at the bottom which said: "I am in canal—Maude Eastman," which was written with a lead pencil, evidently before she jumped into the water.

Miss Eastman was evidently in a greatly excited state of mind over a love affair, judging from the note found in her bag. The note was addressed to her mother and read in part as follows:

"I am going to end it all. I am tired of living. I haven't been so bad as I have been painted."

"You won't have to make any trouble. I shall not be here to worry you. I am going. I don't know where but perhaps God will make a place for me. I have used me always as a gentleman. He has nothing to do with what I am about to do now. I loved him but was trying to forget him on account of the difference in religion."

"Don't worry about me. I am so tired of living. I'm going to end it all. I shall miss you, but hurry up and come too. You will go perhaps to a better place than I, because I shall be a 'suicide,' and they can never enter heaven."

"Good-bye, from your unhappy daughter."

Maude evidently at the last moment before the tragic act was the following line:

"I am in canal. Maude Eastman."

Father Notified

When Capt. Atkinson read the note he immediately detailed Lieut. Froome to call on the girl's father in May street and shortly afterwards the father arrived at the police station and identified the coat, hat and handbag as that belonging to his daughter.

Act Was Premeditated

The unfortunate girl had been keeping company with a young man, but owing to the difference of religion, it is said, the parents objected to her keeping company with him. Last night she ate supper with her father and mother and after supper said she was going to visit a friend in Hampshire street. That was the last time her parents saw her alive.

It Is Said That She Visited the House in Hampshire Street and Explained to Her Father That She Had Nothing to Live for Inasmuch as Her Love Objected to Her Marrying the Man She Loved.

Her friend tried to console her and told her not to take matters so seriously. She then left the house in Hampshire street and evidently walked through the streets pondering over her troubles and went to the canal walk, and after removing her hat and coat and laying her bag on the bank threw herself into the water.

KING GEORGE

state and other headgear recalled the old pictures of Tudor scenes. When he passed the Prince of Wales and the Duke of Connaught he exchanged bows with them, but when he passed the queen, husband and wife made deep obeisances one to the other.

After the crowning of his majesty by the archbishop of Canterbury, the Prince of Wales paid homage kneeling and kissing his father on the left cheek. Following the example of the late King Edward, the king leaned forward, drew his son toward him and grasping his hand, kissed the boy affectionately.

Thousands, anxious for a sight of the processions, kept an all-night vigil. At dawn they presented a tired and bedraggled appearance, surrounded by paper bags in which they had brought their late suppers and early breakfasts. Some, worn out, had retired to the parks to sleep and a few required the attendance of ambulance corps.

Those remaining on the line kept up their good nature and the incident was too trivial to start them waving flags, cheering and singing music hall songs, the most popular of which was "Percy Girl Loves a Soldier," sung with much gusto when a body of troops marched past and changed to snuff the occasion if a body of sailors happened to pass.

The constant procession of carriages to the abbey preceding the coronation lost some of its attractiveness because of the threatening weather which caused most of the equipages to be closed.

The Australian contingent was out in force at Whitehall and gave the Australian yell "cooey" whenever an Australian passed.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier, premier of Canada, and others of the Canadian party were recognized by the crowds and greeted with familiar calls as they drove from their hotel to the abbey.

STOCK MARKET

WAS STEADY AT THE CLOSE THIS AFTERNOON

Caundon Pacific Was Lifted Over a Point—Attempts Made To Advance the Market—Prices Stiffened in the Final Dealings

NEW YORK, June 22.—Bear traders made a drive at the stock market at the opening today and prices fell away rapidly. Selling was unusually active and the market showed signs of nervousness. The opening transaction in United States Steel was a block of 4500 shares at a decline of 1/2. Several other large blocks were sold and the stock quickly lost a point. Reading, Union Pacific, St. Paul, Lehigh Valley and Amalgamated Copper also declined a point and most of the other active issues lost substantial fractions.

A variety of unfavorable reports assisted the bears in driving down prices severely. Chief among these was the fear of prolonged tariff agitation and unfavorable crop news. Losses of a point were general. St. Paul gave way 2 points, Union Pacific 1 1/2 and Northern Pacific 1 1/2.

The heaviest selling which has been witnessed on the exchange for several weeks, caused a substantially lowering of prices this morning. The movement apparently was due more to a bear attack than to liquidation and although the list exhibited marked weakness little long stock was forced upon the market. The latest change in the Washington situation, suggesting a protracted session of congress and raising new doubts as to the attitude of the senate in regard to tariff legislation was looked upon as a disturbing influence and was largely responsible for the bearing sentiment shown on the exchange. United with crop reports and intimations of possible action by the government against the United States Steel corporation, after St. Paul had broken several points the market hardened a fraction under the influence of supporting orders and short coverings but became weak again on bond. Bonds were heavy. Small recoveries were made when the forenoon selling ceased but the trading shrank decidedly as prices hardened. Norfolk & Western attracted some attention by an advance of a point on a revival of the old rumors of guaranteed dividends.

The market seemed to be awaiting developments in the general situation and speculation accordingly dwindled until there were long intervals when the ticker was idle. Prices gained about half a point above the lowest. The market closed steady. An attempt to advance the market by lifting Canadian Pacific over a point did not meet with any success and selling orders appeared again in special stocks when the list showed signs of improvement. American Woolen pf. declined 2 points. Prices stiffened again appreciably in the final dealings.

whole ceremony there was nothing tawdry, nothing common. It was intensely dramatic but not theatrical. The actors filled their roles with dignity. Altogether it was a noble picture in a superb setting.

It had been expected that the actual crowning of the king would take place not much before two o'clock but the preliminaries were carried out with such precision as to permit the rapid progress of the program. The crown was placed on the king's head at 12:33 o'clock.

Two thousand ambulance men were on duty but comparatively few calls were made for their services. Not only London and other large cities of the empire but every village and hamlet in the English provinces participated in the national rejoicing. Whenever a British garrison or a warship is stationed royal salutes were fired at the moment of the crowning at Westminster.

The fleet gathered at Spithead crashed off a salute of 101 guns. The fleet of 400 warships and the foreign war vessels and merchant ships in the harbor joined in the salute.

The Union Jack was hoisted on the public buildings as soon as it was known that the crown had been placed on the king's head. Locomotives whistled, steamers "sighed," and church bells broke out with merry peals.

All over the country the people made a holiday with picnics, sports, patriotic parades and fireworks. At the special request of the queen, the children of every district of the country were provided with some sort of festivity and aged people were lavishly entertained.

Edinburgh and Dublin were brilliantly decorated but today's celebrations there were almost entirely religious. State services were held at St. Giles' and St. Patrick's respectively, where the king was proclaimed at the same time as he was proclaimed at Westminster.

The capitals of Scotland and Ireland had resolved to await their majesty's visit before giving reign to their enthusiasm.

THE POWDER TRUST

The U. S. Circuit Court Says It Restrains Trade

WILMINGTON, Del., June 22.—The U. S. circuit court handed down a decision yesterday declaring that the alleged powder trust, which is dominated by the E. I. du Pont de Nemours company, is a combination in restraint of interstate commerce in powder and other explosives in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law; that it attempted to monopolize and has monopolized a part of such commerce and that the combination shall be enjoined from continuing this violation and shall be dissolved.

The action against the powder trust was begun by the government in 1907 against 43 corporate and individual defendants. The suit as to 15 of the defendants was dismissed because some of the concerns are out of existence or it was not shown that they were parties to the combination.

The court in an interlocutory decree fixed Oct. 16 as the date to hear both sides as to the nature of the injunction to be granted and consider a plan for dissolving said combination, which shall be submitted by the petitioner and the defendant or any of them, to the end that this court may ascertain and determine upon a plan or method for such dissolution which will not deprive the defendants of the opportunity to restate, out of the elements now composing said combination, a new condition which shall be honestly in harmony with and not repugnant to the law.

The decision was written by Judge

W. M. Lanning and concurred in by Judges George Gray and Joseph Ruffin. It is a long review of the history of interstate commerce in gunpowder and other explosives as far back as 1872. The court summarized 7000 pages of evidence taken by special examiner William G. McHaffey in Philadelphia, Wilmington, New York, Chicago, Cleveland and Pittsburg.

"As enacted," reads the decision, "it (the Sherman anti-trust law) does not condemn every combination 'to prevent competition.' What it condemns is every combination in restraint of trade or commerce among the several states," etc.

"The recent decisions of the supreme court in the Standard Oil company vs. the U. S. and American Tobacco company vs. U. S., make it quite clear that the language of the antitrust act is not to receive that literal construction which will impair rather than enhance freedom of interstate commerce."

"As we read those decisions, restraint of interstate trade and restraint of competition in interstate trade are not interchangeable expressions. There may be, under the antitrust act, restraint of interstate trade, just as before the passage of the act, there might have been restraint of competition that did not amount to a common law restraint of trade."

"It matters not whether the combination be in the form of a trade association or a corporation, if it arbitrarily uses its power to force weaker

EVENTS OF THE DAY IN CARTOON

COMPETITORS OUT OF BUSINESS

competitors out of business or to coerce them into a sale to or union with the combination, it puts a restraint upon interstate commerce and monopolizes or attempts to monopolize a part of that commerce in a sense that violates the antitrust act."

Discussing the form of the injunction, the court is guided largely by the action taken by the supreme court in the Standard Oil and Tobacco cases.

"To stop the business of the combination immediately," the court says, "might be attended with very disastrous consequences. The defendants, or some of them, for example, furnish military and ordnance powders to the U. S. government."

"We understand also that they furnish explosives used in the construction of the Panama canal. Their ability to continue so to do should not be destroyed before the expiration of a reasonable time for adjusting their business to the changed conditions."

THEATRE VOYONS

Today the Theatre Voyons shows as its feature picture an excellent adaptation of one of the cleverest of Richard Harding Davis' stories of real life, "Van Bibber's Experiment." This story tells of a club man, a close student of nature, who when he finds a crook trying to break into his home, instead of sending for the police, feeds the man and dresses him up and finally sends him and his wife west to begin life anew. The story is cleverly told and acted with just the kind of force to bring out the moral that there is good in the worst of men if it is only developed in the right way.—Adv.

SUPREME COURT

Decides That Phelps Must Die

BOSTON, June 22.—The conviction of Elias N. Phelps, aged 38, for the murder of Deputy Sheriff Emmett E. Haskins at the home of the defendant in Charlestown was upheld by the full bench of the supreme court yesterday. Defendant's exceptions were overruled. He must suffer death in the electric chair.

He had been employed at the Ramage paper company in Munroe. He was discharged by Supt. Penman on June 11, 1910, and he stabbed Penman about 4 o'clock the following morning. About 4 o'clock the following morning Deputy Sheriff Haskins, with a posse of six persons, went to Phelps' home. The latter refused to admit the deputy or to come out. Finally he fired a shot, killing the sheriff. Phelps escaped to the woods, but was caught.

A number of exceptions were taken in regard to the admissibility of evidence, all of which the court overruled. One exception was that the sheriff had no warrant and so was a trespasser, which justified the defendant in firing the shot. The court holds the sheriff had a right to force an entrance into the house, having suspected the defendant of stabbing Penman.

The court further says there is no case in which it was held that the defendant in a capital case has a right to have the jurors who have been sworn and impanelled kept together during a recess taken by the court before the impaneling of the jury is completed, and the exception relating to the matter was overruled.

DIED SUDDENLY

BOY PASSED AWAY AFTER HAVING TEETH PULLED

WESTBORO, June 22.—William Fournier, 13 years old, died suddenly yesterday forenoon at the Lyman hospital.

The boy, whose home was in Amesbury, collapsed in the dentist's chair following extraction of several teeth, for which an anesthetic had been administered.

Previous to the extraction of the teeth the boy was examined by Dr. Thomas A. Ayre in the presence of a nurse and the dentist and was believed to be in good physical health, it is said.

Supt. Elmer L. Coffeen of the Lyman school notified Dr. Charles S. Knight of Westboro, medical examiner, who viewed the body but would not say what he thought caused death. He reported the matter to Dist. Atty. Jas. A. Stiles and is awaiting instructions as to an autopsy.

Supt. Coffeen said the school physician and nurse were in attendance during the extraction and that every care was taken.

The boy was committed to the school Tuesday afternoon on a charge of larceny, and was in the hospital, not having been assigned to any cottage. The boy's father, Frank Fournier, was notified yesterday afternoon and is expected to come for the body.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

The presentation of that most enjoyable romantic comedy, "Her Broken Idol," at the Merrimack Square theatre this week, is scoring heavily at each performance. The work of Miss McDermott, the Lowell girl who is engaged in the cast, is of special interest to local patrons. This young woman has already displayed unusual ability in the part to which she is assigned and gives encouraging promise for the future.

Mr. Snow and Miss Anderson are both pleasantly cast and their endeavors to please are being met with the approval of all. "Her Broken Idol" is among the very best and cleverest playlets seen on a local stage. Special attention is given to the stage dressing of the piece. The members of the company will hold a reception Saturday afternoon.

Among the other numbers included in the week's bill, the singing of Miss May E. Whiteley, one of Lowell's talented vocalists, is among the best. Slapton and Smith are first class colored entertainers, and Christine, the ventriloquist, gives a clever demonstration of his work. The motion pictures include "A Trip to Niagara Falls," one of the finest of its kind shown.—Adv.

LAKEVIEW THEATRE

It is pleasing to the management of Lakeview theatre to note that the people of Lowell and surrounding towns have taken to the stock company so early. The theatre last evening was well filled and also at the matinee, showing that the good reports spread about this company have had the desired effect and that the public will go to good attractions properly presented. Those who have seen this company and the play, "The Sign of the Hour,"

WILLIAMSON MAY DIE

It is Alleged He Was Shot By Harry Butts

BOSTON, June 22.—Displeased with alleged attention to his wife, Harry H. Butts, aged 38, shot and killed William Williamson, aged 47, at 117 Cambridge street, at 11 o'clock yesterday. Williamson is said to have been a member of the City Hospital and will probably die.

The man had been a acquaintance some time and it is said that on several occasions Butts had reproached Williamson for his attentions to Mrs. Butts. They met at Shawmut avenue and Camden street about 7 last night and heated words followed.

Without warning, Butts, it is said, drew a 32-caliber revolver from his hip pocket and fired four shots. One entered Williamson's right lung and the other three lodged in his intestines. Williamson sank to the ground, standing within a few feet. Butts calmly lit a cigarette, took out his pocket

handkerchief, cleaned the weapon and remarked to the spectators: "Now I've done it!"

Dist. Atty. Bellamy was on an outboard bound Shawmut avenue car at the time and within 20 yards of the shooting. He alighted and waited until Butts had gone and then called a patrolman and placed Butts under arrest. The latter calmly accompanied the officer and while on the way to the patrol box told the officer the circumstances.

Williamson is single. After being booked Butts was taken to the hospital. It was said the men recognized each other and that Williamson accused Butts of shooting him, while Butts, in the presence of the officers and doctors, it is said, acknowledged the shooting.

Butts was formerly a cook in the U. S. navy and is said to have been discharged last March.

White of Eggs for the Hair

Whites of eggs materially help in forming a lather when used in shampooing the hair and scalp. They thicken the emulsion, and thus make a better vehicle for picking up and holding in suspension the smallest particles of dust and dirt, which are carried away finally by repeated rinsing in clean water. Birt's Head Wash contains whites of eggs, which is one of the reasons why it leaves the scalp and hair in such a delightfully clean, healthy condition after a shampoo with it.

It also contains glycerin, used everywhere for skin troubles; coconut oil, to prevent a dry, scaly condition and to give lustre to the hair; and a small amount of salicylic acid, which is an antiseptic that prevents the development of bacteria, putrefaction and disagreeable odors.

THOSE JUNE BRIDES.

I CAN'T understand this stuff that comes out in the papers every year about June brides," said the young man to an oldish man seated beside him on the trolley car. "Easiest thing in the world, my boy," was the answer. "But why select June? If you are going to be married why not in May or July or any other month?" "My dear boy, at Christmas time or New Year's you make your girl a present of a diamond ring and ask for her heart. She gives it to you. You at once begin wearing your old clothes, saving your pennies, borrowing from your friends, winning at poker, doing overwork and practicing all sorts of little schemes to get a few dollars ahead of the game. "But what has this to do with June?" "Why, it takes you from January to June to save the first month's rent on a flat and pay the preacher's fee, but on second thoughts I will marry you if you like.

for matrimony. Of course—of course. Queer you didn't know that, and a young man, too."

JOE KERR.

OH, THAT MONEY.

The Old Millionaire—Well, if you won't have me, I suppose you will be a sister to me.
The Young Maiden—No, I don't have you well enough to be a sister to you, but on second thoughts I will marry you if you like.

Bathing Girl

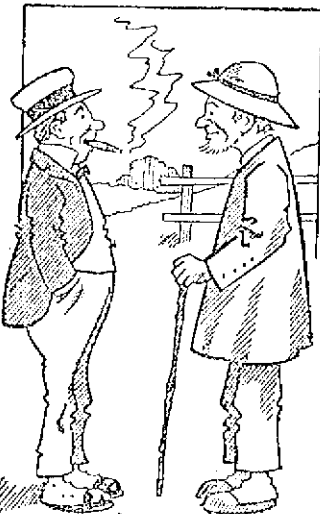

WHEN Peggy bathes she loves to wear A stylish costume, dainty-sweet, And tiny shoes upon her feet. When Peggy bathes she loves her feet A pretty cap conceals her hair; From top to toe she's trim and neat. When Peggy bathes she loves to wear A stylish costume, dainty-sweet.

SHE does not venture very far, Because the waves might make her wet. Or disarrange her coiffure net; She does not venture very far, But on the margin like a star She rises and is loath to set. She does not venture very far Because the waves might make her wet.

FOLLOWING IN HIS FOOTSTEPS.

Mrs. Justwed—How sweet of you, love, to admit that you were in the wrong.
Mr. Justwed—That's the way father always did. He used to say, "You've got to humor 'em, boy."

YANKEES' FAULT.

Yankee Tourist—I always thought that this part of England was full of beautiful ruined feudal castles.
Native—So it was, too, until yer blowin' Hamerican hettresses married off all our dooks and put the castles in good repair, blast the luck.

The Stay at Home.

LET others go and suffocate in chambers six by nine. These torrid nights a hammock swung Upon the roof is fine. While broiling on a sandy beach Some foolish folks may please, I much prefer with book and pipe At home to take my ease.

YOU'RE welcome to your morning dip Within the rolling deep, Where crabs are fastened to your toes And oes around you creep. My tub of pure white porcelain, As clean as clean can be, With sparkling shower bath attached, Is good enough for me.

Wayside Wisdom.

Sweet are the uses of perversity.

The sayings that pass into song live longest in memory.

The milk of human kindness should never be skimmed.

One man is as good as another and oftentimes better.

A man should love whiskey wisely but not too well.

The rector of a church should be the corrector of bad habits.

Where ignorance is bliss 'tis folly to establish a colored university.

There are men who are so constitutionally dull that even a thrashing will not make them smart.

There are two reasons why a joke may fall. One is that the man who heard it may be too dull to see the point. The other is that the joke may have no point to see.

There are some men born to lead men and some born to lead mules. The trouble comes when the mule leader puts himself forward as the leader of men.

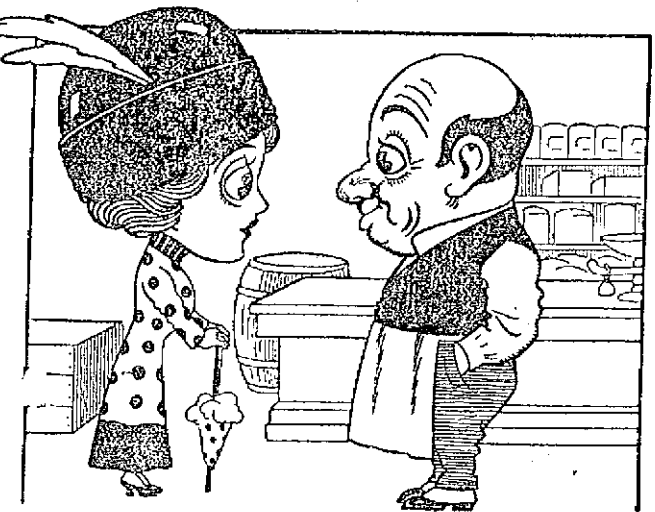

THERE ARE A FEW.

"Where are you going to spend your vacation?"
"On a farm."
"Mosquitoes, hail room, skimmed milk and all that sort of thing. I suppose?"
"No, this farm isn't a comco woolly farm; it is away out in the country."

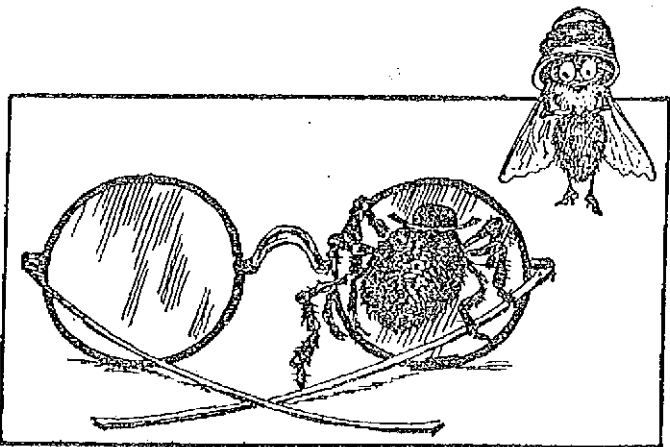

THE HIGHFLYERS.

You have named your aeroplane after your husband. Yes, indeed, but not as a compliment. Then why?
Because it smokes so much, can't be depended upon and half the time it is unmanageable.

MAN OF GRIT.

The Housekeeper—I'd like to have a box of your blackberries.
The Grocer—Indeed! It's a wonder you would come back after complaining about the sand in the last box of berries.
The Housekeeper—Oh, it is my appreciation of bravery that brings me back.
The Grocer—Appreciation of bravery?
The Housekeeper—Yes, I admire your grit.

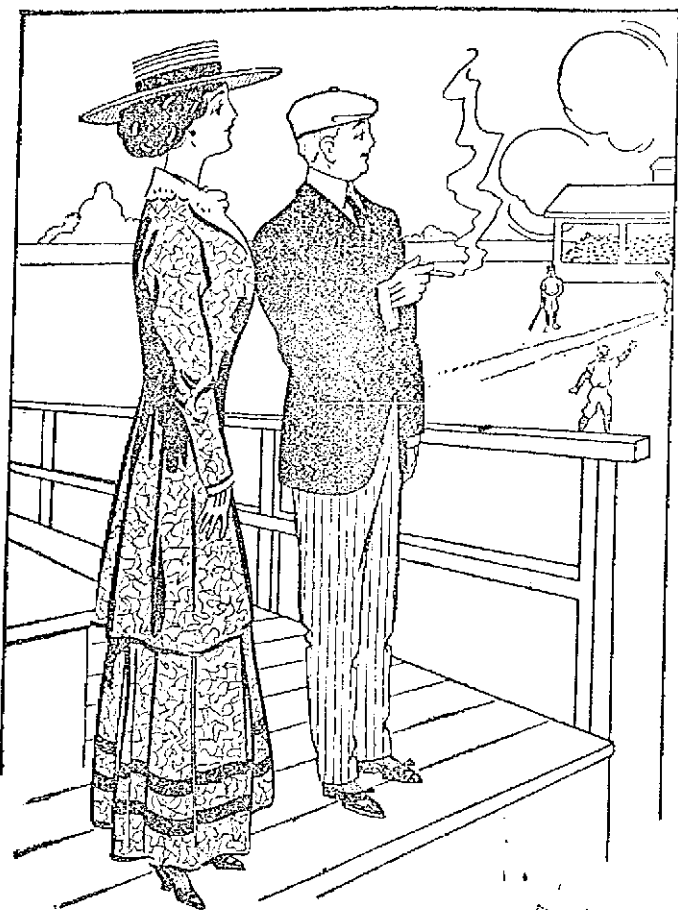

NO WONDER.

Spider—Gliminy! Yonder comes the biggest fly I ever saw!

BOTANY.

Miss De Fiat—What are those little purple berries?
The Farmer—Them's elderberries.
Miss De Fiat—And I suppose those tiny green ones are younger berries.

ON BARGAIN DAYS.

My office boy has a bargain counter grandmother. What do you mean by that?
She always dies on the days that they have double-headers at the baseball grounds.

I WAS trying to do some business in a North Dakota town," said the Chicago drummer, "and I ran up against about the meanest lot of town officials I ever bumped up against. The mayor, his clerk, the recorder, the marshal and an alderman were named Ryder, and they all bothered me at every point. I finally gave up in disgust and said to the landlord of the inn:
"Nice old town you have here!"
"What's the matter?"
"The Ryder family seems to run it."

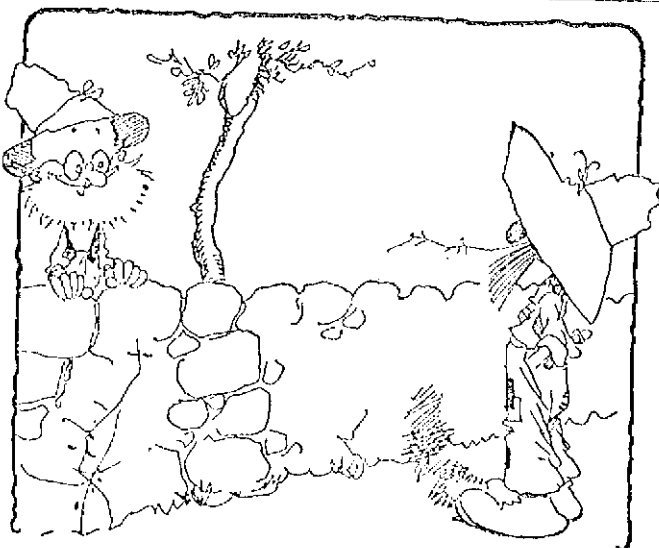

"Hush!"
"What shall I hush about?"
"He took me into the dining room and closed the door and whispered: 'Yes, the Ryders do run the town.' 'But why do the rest of you permit it?'
"We can't help it; they've got the influence."
"And what is the influence?"

THE PRINCIPAL THING.

Mr. Brown—If your Sewing Society wants to do really good work, why don't you buy a sewing machine?
Mrs. Brown—Why?
Mr. Brown—Because one machine can do as much as ten women at the very outside.
Mrs. Brown—Nonsense. A sewing machine can't gossip.

EXPENSIVE, THOUGH.

"But why?"
"I want to be tried by the Senate."
"But it can't be done."

His Honor smiled and announced that the prisoner was not only not guilty, but had come out of the crisis with a reputation whiter than snow!

THIS DAY IN HISTORY

MEN OF KENT LEAVE HOME

JUNE 22.—Jack Cade was an Irishman living in England, so it's a cliché he didn't like the way things were going. So Jack decided to use some tricks he had learned fighting in the French wars, and started a rebellion in Kent, June 22, 1450. Jack wasn't alone either. As a matter of fact he had nearly 30,000 men at his back when he started for London. He camped at Blackheath where the court sent to inquire why the good men of Kent had left their homes. Cade, who must have been there with the proclamation, answered in a paper entitled "The Complaint of the Commons of Kent," which was regarded as an improvement upon the Magna Charta. The court sent an answer in the form of an army and Jack hit the place back to Seven Oaks. When the royal army arrived in his wake Jack turned and eluded them up. Then he advanced towards London, where the "royal" army refused to fight against their own countrymen. The court then made some concessions and Cade entered London July 2. For a few days all went well and then Jack assumed the role of dictator and his army began to sack the city. It was thought that he had designs on the throne, and he was forced to decamp. He tried to reach the coast but the price set upon his head made it worth while to hunt him, and he was slain near Lewes on July 11.

ROYAL ARCANUM

J. J. Hogan Given Reception by Industry Council

Mr. John J. Hogan of this city, who was elected one of the three supreme trustees of the supreme council of the Royal Arcanum at the recent convention of Arcanumites in Minneapolis, was tendered a reception by Industry Council in Odd Fellows temple last night. Present at the meeting were hundreds of members of the order who reside in this city, together with officers of the grand council.

JAMES E. GORMAN, Regent Industry Council.

During the early part of the evening a business meeting was held and eight candidates were initiated, and the full degree was conferred on Mr. Daniel E. Hogan, he being the fourth member of the same family to be made a member of the council.

Orator Michael J. Sullivan presided, and after making an address of welcome short speeches were made by Grand Regent Ernest E. Hobson of Palmer, Grand Vice Regent James F. Wise of Dorchester, Past Grand Regent George H. Wiley of Malden, Grand Secretary William L. Kelt of Alston, Supreme Representative Robert Sweet of Melrose, Past Grand Albert W. David and Alonzo G. Walsh of Lowell.

Mr. Hogan was then introduced and he spoke on the convention. He disclaimed any credit for what had been given him, saying that it was due to Lowell and Massachusetts and that it was only by the self sacrifice of the other delegates from this state that he happened to be the lucky man. He spoke feelingly of the benefits which he had derived from the Arcanum and asked that all unite and make this a banner year for this city and this state and make the regime of the present regent the most successful in years.

After Mr. Hogan had finished he stood at the head of the council hall and the members present filed by to shake hands with him and wish him success in his new position.

Between the speeches there were solos by Eugene McCarthy, John S. Jackson and George F. McGuire. Mr. Joseph Treadwell accompanied Harold Hennessy told some funny stories, mentioning local men in a way that kept all amused.

After the reception a supper was served in the upper hall and an informal time enjoyed by the 200 or more present. Henry catered.

The committee which worked hard to bring the affair to its successful conclusion was: Orator, Michael J. Sullivan, Richard Mover, John W. Shach, James E. Gorman and T. J. Garvey.

There were friends from out of town who were guests, among them being Mrs. Jack Harkin and daughter of Buffalo, N. Y., sister of Mrs. M. J. Cahill. The whole affair was considered one of the most delightful times that the club has enjoyed since its organization.

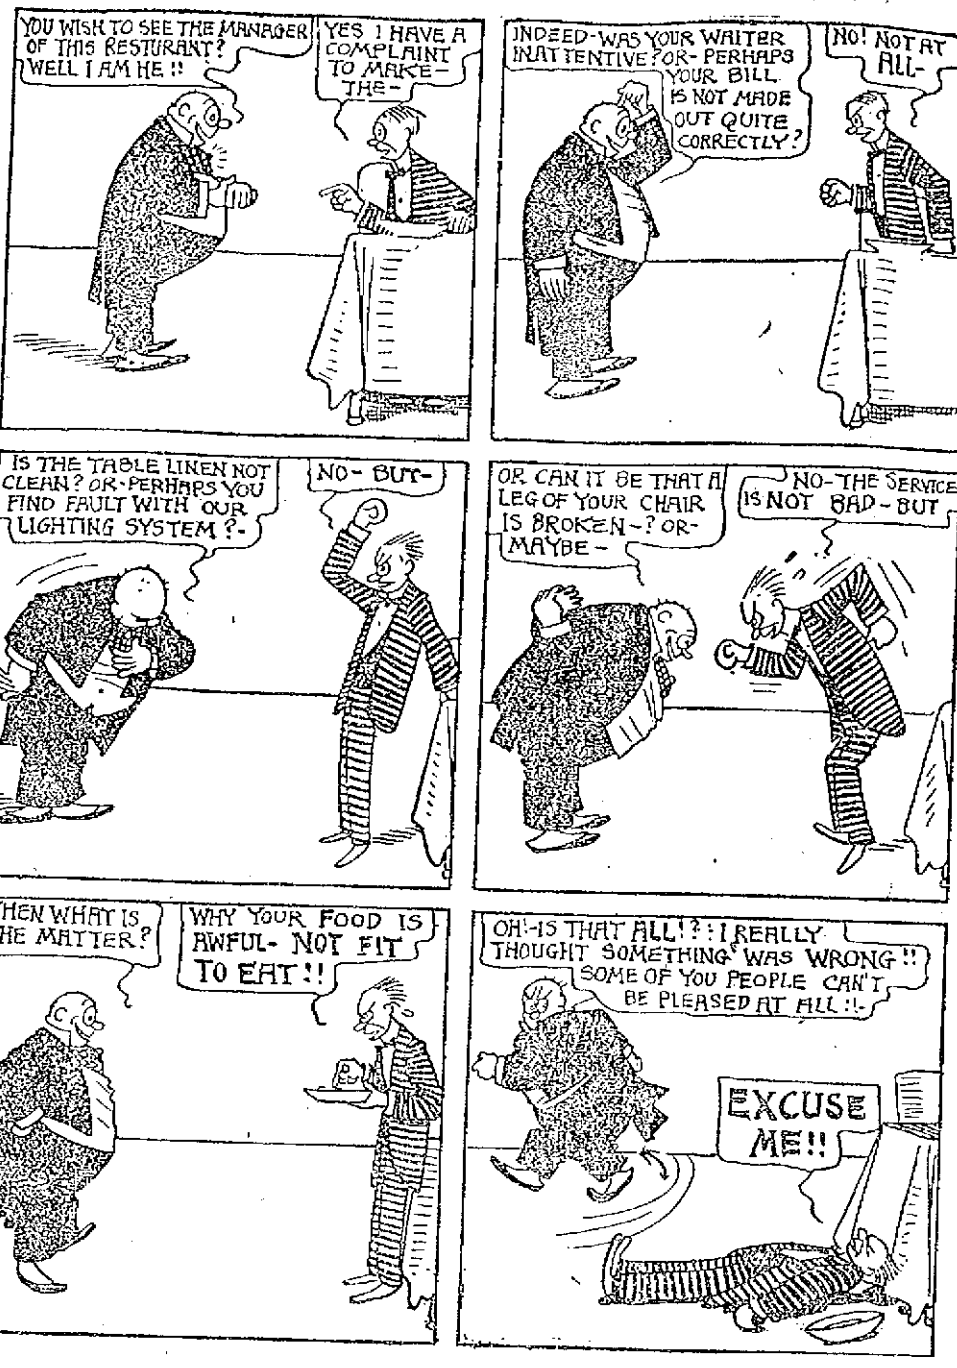

The success of the affair was due to the excellent management of Miss Julia Allen and Miss Julia Slattery.

EXCUSE ME!

MAYOR SIGNED ORDER

Transferring Hospital Site Back to the Charity Board

Mayor John F. Meehan has signed the joint order re-transferring the site for a contagious disease hospital from the board of charities to the board of charities.

The land in question is on the grounds of the Chelmsford street hospital and while a majority of the commission, including Mayor Meehan, favored the site there developed sufficient opposition by persons owning homes near there to influence the city council to rescind its former action whereby it voted the transfer of the land from the board of charities to the contagious hospital commission.

Dr. James J. McCarthy was the only member of the commission who was opposed to the site and while he voted for it in the beginning he afterwards advocated a site on the same premises, but situated near the Chelmsford street hospital and having a greater acreage. Now, there is no site in view and had the mayor done other than to sign the order the proposition would remain at a standstill as it was well known that the city council would absolutely refuse to vote money for a contagious hospital to be erected on the site selected near the Chelmsford street hospital.

"I think that the site selected was a very good one," said Mayor Meehan today, "but I knew that the city council would not vote money for a hospital there and that would mean that the proposition would be at a standstill."

still, I am interested in the erection of a contagious disease hospital and I do not want to see the proposition even temporarily abandoned. It is a well known fact that a majority of the board was in favor of the site and I was of the majority. The future of the proposition rested with me and I felt that there was nothing left for me to do but to sign the order. With the disputed site out of the way the avenue to action remains open and I know that the commission and the city council can agree on a site. The matter is too important to admit of any personal feeling. It is something that is of vital interest to the people of Lowell, and it is up to the commission to get busy and select another site. I have no particular site in mind, but I am anxious that a contagious hospital be erected and will do all in my power to make a new start. We must have a contagious hospital, and the sooner the better. We have not the eye to penetrate and we never know what is in store for us. Where or to whom would we turn if an epidemic should break out? I believe in the old adage, that 'It is well in times of peace to prepare for war.'
